Atom Chief Asks Quick Verdict on Management

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The peoples of the world can well be reassured by the "proud" record of the Atomic Energy Commission, Chairman David E. Lilienthal told Congress yesterday in asking a speedy verdict on congressional charges of "maladministration."

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee promptly announced that public hearings into the charges will start today at 9 a. m.

Lilienthal's letter stating that "a full, complete and speedy report on the charges that the United States atomic energy program is virtually a failure is a matter urgently necessary" was addressed to McMahon as committee chairman.

Cites Hickenlooper Blast

Lilienthal referred especially to charges by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), a member and former chairman of the committee, of "incredible mismanagement," "misplaced emphasis" and "maladministration."

The commission chairman said these charges "involve nothing less than the security of this Nation and the peace of the world."

Hickenlooper and other critics of the AEC last night had "no comment" on the Lilienthal letter.

The Iowa Senator was understood to be preparing an answer for release today.

The facts concerning the commission's stewardship of atomic energy "can be readily established," Lilienthal declared.

The chief question, Lilienthal said, is this: "Is this country weak today in atomic weapons and materials, and in their production and improvements, as implied by the broad and grave charges leveled against the commission?"

Record Is "Proud One"

In a ringing defense of the commission's record, Lilienthal replied:

"It can be stated categorically that the record in this respect is a proud one. It is one to give great reassurance to the peoples of the world who, as of this hour, rely upon the strength of the United States of America."

Lilienthal suggested a series of specific questions designed to test the efficiency of the civilian commission's control of atomic energy. His emphasis in the questions on

Mrs. Perle Mesta To Invite Notables To Godfrey Show

Mrs. Perle Mesta, Washington's No. 1 hostess, yesterday added her active support to the Arthur Godfrey "Homecoming" show at the National Guard Armory the night of June 4.

Mrs. Mesta will serve as chairman of a patrons committee and personally invite many of Washington's most prominent persons to attend the Godfrey performance.

Mrs. Mesta played a leading part in the brilliant success of the Presidential Ball and Gala of the President Truman inauguration.

Bob Hope and other big-name stars will be guests on Godfrey's show. Godfrey will bring his entire CBS radio network and television cast from New York as well as some of the top talent on Broadway.

Tickets for the Godfrey show are on sale in the lobby of the Washington Post at the Fairway sports shop, 1328 G st. n.w., and the Sports Center, 8th and D sts. n.w.

Forrestal Honored by Nation At Arlington Resting Place

A SIMPLE MARKER—Sandra Sue Burchfield, 4, of Arlington, Va., places a rose at the grave of Mr. Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense, a Navy flier in World War I, honorably discharged in July, 1919, with the rank of lieutenant in the regular Navy.

On an oak-shaded knoll at Arlington Cemetery, James Forrestal yesterday found the peace and unity that he felt had eluded him in his lifetime.

Honored by the Nation's leaders and the combined armed forces he led as this country's first Secretary of Defense, the 57-year-old Forrestal was laid to rest with full military honors.

A hushed 4000 throng of spectators waited in the bright sunshine around the Arlington Amphitheater where President Truman and ranking officials gathered for the official burial services.

Hundreds of the spectators then followed the horse-drawn caisson nearly a mile along winding roads to the site overlooking Memorial Gate, where the Forrestal family attended private last rites.

Throughout the services there was still a feeling of incredulity that the serious, hard-working Forrestal, pushed to mental exhaustion by the mountain of work before him in nine years of Government activity, had chosen to take his own life last Sunday.

The officers and enlisted men who knew him here and in the Pacific, and worked with him in his attempts to unify the armed forces, sat numbly in the amphitheater and listened to the Right Rev. Wallace E. Conkling of Chicago read from the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians:

"So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, death is swallowed up in victory."

Forrestal, who leaped to his death from a sixteenth-story window of the Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he was being treated for a nervous breakdown, received the same burial honors he would have been accorded had he died in office.

Employees of the National Defense Establishment were released from their duties to attend the funeral.

Bridges Is Indicted By U. S. Jury

San Francisco, May 25 (U.P.)—Harry Bridges, president of the left-wing CIO longshoremen's union, was indicted by a Federal grand jury today.

He was charged with perjury and conspiracy to obstruct and defeat the naturalization laws.

The Government also sought to revoke the citizenship of the Australian-born labor leader. He is reported to be in New York.

Bridges was charged with swearing he was not a member of the Communist Party, when he "had in fact been a member of the Communist Party from 1933 until and up to" his naturalization September 17, 1945.

Two other officials of Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, J. R. Robertson and Henry Schmidt, were indicted with him.

Bail of the three was set at $5000 each.

In one count the three were charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States by obstructing and defeating the proper administration of the naturalization laws.

False Swearing Charged

Bridges, 47, was charged with perjury in swearing falsely at his naturalization hearing that he was not a member of the Communist Party.

Schmidt and Robertson were charged in a third count with perjury. They were accused of having testified at the hearing, "knowing their testimony to be false," that Bridges was not a member of the Communist Party.

A possible penalty of seven years imprisonment and $15,000 fine could be imposed on each of the three.

John P. Boyd, deputy commissioner of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the action culminated an investigation which had been going on for some time.

"We have new evidence which has never been presented before," he told reporters. "We feel reasonably certain of our case." He added that some prominent labor leaders had been "helpful in developing the case."

Schmidt in Hawaii

Schmidt is in Hawaii, where he is directing the Hawaiian waterfront strike.

The FBI office in Honolulu said it was standing by for word on the bench warrant and probably would make the arrest.

Schmidt is a member of the Longshore and Labor Relations Committee. Robertson is first vice president of the ILWU.

An official ILWU statement last night said "the administration" had ordered the indictment of Bridges, adding:

"Mr. Bridges has been a severe critic of the failure of the Administration to deliver its election promises, being particularly critical at the recent meeting of the national CIO executive board."

Among the United States Government men participating in the grand jury presentation today were J. Joseph Donohue, a special assistant attorney general from Washington, and John P. Boyd, deputy commissioner of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Compromise Eases ECA Fund Slash

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Marshall Plan compromise, acceptable alike to House Democratic and Republican leaders, yesterday eased the impact of a proposed 15 per cent slash in 1950 ECA appropriations.

The bipartisan settlement, apparently assured in advance of House approval, may provide ECA with almost as much money as it asked by permitting the President to spend the reduced amount over a shorter period.

Worked out quietly off the floor, to avoid an explosive House fight that might have echoed overseas, the plan simply gives Mr. Truman discretion to spend ECA funds for 1950 and the last quarter of this fiscal year in 13 1/2 months instead of 15.

Limited to ECA Funds

The agreement is limited to appropriations for the Economic Cooperation Administration and does not cover a 15 per cent Appropriations Committee cut in funds for occupied areas.

Off-the-floor negotiations were still in progress, however, and might possibly lead to some easing of it.

The Appropriations Committee's proposed cutback in funds for government and relief in occupied areas from one billion dollars to 850 million.

The $29,750,000 limitation placed on administrative costs in occupied areas which some officials said might seriously embarrass newly named High Commissioner to Germany John J. McCloy.

The ECA compromise, expected to be accepted without extensive argument by the House, will be presented by Representative J. Vaughan Gary (D., Va.), with the backing of House Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) and leaders on both sides of the aisle.

In effort, the House would not appropriate any more than the full Appropriations Committee recommended when it voted the cut, namely, $1,074,000,000 for the last quarter of this fiscal year, and $3,568,470,000 for the 1950 fiscal year.

Could Come Back for More

Mr. Truman in his discretion, however, could spend the entire amount, totaling $4,642,470,000 by May 15, 1950, instead of making it last through June 30, 1950.

Presumably, if the drop in the price of commodities goes on, the committee when it ordered the cut, Mr. Truman could then come back to Congress for another deficiency appropriation, and get it.

The compromise device was similar to the one used in ECA appropriations for this year, when Congress advanced funds for 15 months, but Mr. Truman was permitted to spend them in 12.

If the funds are used in the proposed 13 1/2-month period, committee spokesmen said ECA could spend at the rate of about $44 million dollars a month, some $7 million less than the rate contemplated in the President's request.

Representative Cannon, and his ECA subcommittee chairman, Representative Gary, voiced "gratification" with the compromise.

Gary stressed testimony by ECA

Strike Again Ties Up Berlin Rail Traffic

Berlin, May 25 (NYHT)—The Berlin railway strike brought international rail traffic between Berlin and the west zones of Germany to a standstill again today, with each of the four parties to the dispute pointing an accusing finger toward one or another of its adversaries.

While responsibility for the tie-up is being argued, freight and passenger trains are piling up outside the city because Berlin's switches and signals are not working.

Managed by the railroad workers' union, the strike has jammed the railroads with unloading trains and it was reported that only two trains arrived in the city during the 24 hours ending at 6 p. m. tonight.

The striking Independent Workers' Organization (UGO) said tonight that they will not work on the railroads without some agreement with railway management.

This afternoon they attempted to reach an agreement by which they would supply special staffs for interzonal trains and were rebuffed. They repeated the offer tonight in a letter, and are still awaiting a reply, with their men standing by.

Management has already made its views clear. The strikers no longer work for the company, they have announced. They manned signals and switches with strikebreakers, but mobs and the west police drove them away. Since they do not recognize the

Service Men's Welfare Vital, Truman Says

President Truman said last night it is "much more important" now than when the Nation was at war to see to the personal welfare of men of the armed forces because today "we're fighting for peace in the world and the welfare of all people—not just ourselves."

"Never in the history of the world," the President said, "has there been a nation with the power we have that has followed the path we have followed—we've helped to rehabilitate countries we defeated. Study your history—it never happened before."

The President addressed a National Conference on Community Responsibility to Our Peacetime Servicemen and Women at the Washington Hotel, called by his Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces. Hundreds of representatives of religious, civic, educational and labor groups from all over the country are attending the two-day conference.

Today's servicemen, the President said, deserve "the same treatment they would have had if they'd stayed at home."

"In most instances they're very happy in the armed services," the President said. "But they need something which the armed services can't give them."

He said he appreciated "most highly what this committee is doing and is trying to do to fill this gap. The committee is working on it."

E. W. Scott Gets Science Liaison Post

Appointment of Dr. Eugene W. Scott of Bethesda, Md., as first full-time executive secretary of the Interdepartmental Committee on Scientific Research and Development was announced yesterday.

The research chemist and his new duties Govern.m.e.n.t. liaison expert in scientific affairs will begin on June 1, it was announced.

Dr. L. R. Hafstad, chairman of the committee, at present, Dr. Scott is assistant executive secretary of the Research and Development Board, National Military Establishment.

The committee, composed of representatives of 12 Federal agencies, was established in December, 1947, to coordinate Federal scientific activities to increase efficiency of the over-all Federal research and development program.

Appointment of a full-time secretary to the committee was recommended by the Hoover Commission.

"The new secretary lives at 5601 Oakmont ave., Bethesda, is married, and has two sons and one daughter. He is a member of the Cosmos Club, Phi Lambda Upsilon, Sigma Xi, and Gamma Alpha.

Administrator Paul Hoffman that he will do the job with the least possible outlay consistent with European recovery.

"If prices continue to decline, it may be possible for ECA to go through the entire 15-month period with the money we have provided," said Gary. "What we are chiefly trying to avoid is any possible embarrassment to the program during this crucial period."

Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb told reporters he hoped the House "will see fit to restore the cut, so that the great progress which has already been made in European recovery can be carried forward during the second year."

Webb said the 15 per cent slash voted by the Appropriations Committee would be a "serious blow" to the program.

"The State Department feels strongly that a reduction of such magnitude... will adversely and seriously affect the prospects that the program can be successfully completed in 1952," Webb said.

"We must never lose sight of the fact that the European Recovery program is a key factor in our foreign policy."

By Murray Marder Post Reporter

A New York industrialist now serving in the Economic Cooperation Administration will be among two or three "outsiders" nominated along with "insiders," for five posts of Assistant Secretary of State, it was learned last night.

He is George W. Perkins, director of the industry division in the Paris office of the ECA special representative, W. Averell Harriman.

One of the "inside" nominations will go to John D. Hickerson, Foreign Service career officer and director of the department's Office of European Affairs since 1947, slated to become Assistant Secretary for United Nations Affairs.

In addition to the five assistant secretaries, President Truman is expected, in the next day or two, to name a counselor and a legal adviser for the department.

Perkins is expected to head one of the following self-contained operating units which the Hoover Commission recommended establishing: European, Near Eastern and African, Far Eastern, and American Republic Affairs.

Yesterday it was announced that Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, who has gained world fame for his work in bringing peace to Palestine as acting United Nations mediator, has declined an offer of one of the assistant secretariats.

Bunche Explains Refusal

President Truman and the State Department sought the 44-year-old educator and political scientist for Assistant Secretary for Near Eastern and African Affairs.

Dr. Bunche, who thus could have attained the highest United States post ever reached by a Negro, conferred at the White House with Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb.

He told reporters later that while he was "highly honored by the offer," he could not accept it for financial reasons and because he feels he should not leave his regular position as senior director of the United Nations Trusteeship Council.

In that role, Dr. Bunche receives an income of $11,000 a year—after taxes—plus a $3000 allowance, and while serving as U. N. Mediator he receives $2500 additional. Assistant Secretary of State pays $10,330 a year—subject to taxes—while legislation to increase the salary has been delayed in Congress.

Dr. Bunche pointed out that he has two daughters soon to enter college, and a 5-year-old son, and that he and Mrs. Bunche would have difficulty with Washington's "high costs."

Personal concern, which he did not mention yesterday, would be a "lost daily encounter with Washington's segregated facilities. In New York, his friends noted, he generally has no reason to be confronted by this difficulty."

Kennan Will Be Counselor

The State Department has already selected another candidate for the post offered Bunche, it was learned. This nominee is expected to be announced by the President within a day or two, when he names his selections for the other assistant secretary jobs.

Probably at the same time, authoritative sources said, President Truman will nominate a legal adviser, and will name George F. Kennan, head of the department's Policy Planning Staff, to fill the added role of counselor.

Kennan will replace Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, now in Paris with Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Bohlen is slated to become minister-counselor of the embassy in Paris.

Perkins and Hickerson will fill two of the four new assistant secretariats authorized recently by Congress, to give the department a total of 10 such posts. Another assistant secretariats is open through abolishment of the role of assistant secretary for occupied areas—held by Charles E. Saltzman.

Two to Get Deputy Posts

Congress authorized two of the assistant secretaries to be designated deputy undersecretaries, without salary increase. John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State for Administration, and Dean Rusk, presently the Assistant Secretary for United Nations Affairs, are to get the new designations.

James E. Webb continues as Under Secretary of State, ranking just below Acheson.

Perkins, who is 54, has served with ECA since last June, and at the time he joined ECA was executive vice president and director of Merck & Co., Inc., New York, and a director of the City Bank Farmers Trust Co. of New York. A Republican and Princeton graduate, he entered World War as a private, and during the last war was a colonel in the Chemical Corps. He is the son of the late George W. Perkins, who was a close friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and was active in organization of United States Steel Corp., and the International Harvester Co.

Hickerson, who entered the consular service in 1920, is 51 years old and a Texan by birth. For many years he was closely identified with United States-Canadian relations.

Military Rites for First Secretary of Defense

CORTEGE—The flag-covered casket of James V. Forrestal rests on a caisson (foreground) waiting to take its place in the military funeral procession as a naval unit (background) marches by. More than 6000 attended the rites yesterday in Arlington.

Forrestal Laid to Rest

The star-figured blue flag of the Secretary of National Defense was carried aloft in the funeral procession of Naval Academy midshipmen, soldiers, Marines and members of the Air Force.

To the sound of a 19-gun salute from an Army battery in the distance, and the muffled beat of a drum, six gray horses pulled the caisson bearing the flag-draped coffin to the amphitheater.

Ahead of the caisson were the Right Rev. Conkling, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago, and a close friend of the Forrestal family, and Rear Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, and Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps Commandant.

Other mourners included former President Herbert Hoover, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. George C. Marshall and Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson.

As the coffin was carried inside to the strains of "Lead Kindly Light," played by the Army Band, President Truman, accompanied by Vice President Barkley, left Mrs. Truman in the Presidential box to take his place behind the coffin on the dais at the front of the amphitheater.

The brief service, delivered by Bishop Conkling, included the forty-sixth psalm, beginning "God is our hope and strength, a very present help in trouble..." and the 130th psalm, which begins: "Out of the deep have I called unto thee, O Lord; Lord, hear my voice."

A brisk wind whipped the flag-draped casket; twice the breeze carried the flag off the coffin during the 20-minute ceremony.

Mrs. Forrestal and her sons, Michael and Peter, were not seen inside the amphitheater, but attended the graveside rites, which they desired to be private.

Accompanied by Brother Henry A. Forrestal, a brother of the former Secretary, and his wife, of Beacon, N. Y., and their three children, a daughter Mary, and

Senate Won't Let Johnson Shift Men Between Services

The Senate yesterday refused to give Defense Secretary Johnson power to transfer personnel and combat assignments between the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

It defeated, 46 to 26, an amendment to the pending unification bill, a measure aimed at increasing the powers of the Defense Secretary and wiping out duplication of economic activities of the three services.

The rejected amendment was one of five offered by Senator Morse (R., Ore.) in an effort to strengthen the Secretary's hand in dealing with the armed forces. It would have stricken from the bill language specifically barring such transfers.

Curb Called Necessary

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) said his Senate Armed Services Committee believed the restriction on Johnson's authority was necessary to assure passage of the bill and to protect spirit and morale in the services.

He previously said the language two sons, Henry and James. Also present was Dr. George N. Raines, Navy psychiatrist who attended Forrestal and was absolved by Mrs. Forrestal of any responsibility for the suicide.

Bishop Conkling read the Episcopal memorial service at the grave, while military police kept back a crowd of several hundred who had followed the caisson to the burial site.

Three volleys of shots were fired by a Marine squad, and the solemn farewell of "taps" was sounded by a Marine bugler and picked up by an "echo" bugler a distance away.

Mrs. Forrestal, her face covered by a long black veil, was escorted to a car as behind her workmen erected a plain temporary wooden marker that bore the World War I title of the conscientious little man who was to become Secretary of the Navy and Secretary of Defense: "James Forrestal, 'Lieutenant, U. S. N.'"

Matthews Sworn In As Navy Secretary

Francis P. Matthews, wealthy 52-year-old Omaha lawyer, was sworn in as Secretary of the Navy yesterday in ceremonies attended by high-ranking officials.

Matthews succeeds John L. Sullivan, who resigned in protest when Defense Secretary Louis Johnson killed Navy plans to build a supercarrier.

Dan A. Kimball, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, also was sworn in yesterday as Navy Undersecretary. Gordon Gray, former Assistant Secretary of the Army, was sworn in as Army Undersecretary.

Senate Group Approves Fleming for New Post

The Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee yesterday unanimously approved Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming to be chairman of the Maritime Commission.

President Truman picked the Public Works Administrator to succeed Vice Admiral William W. Smith, whose term expired April 15.

Truman Given 'Rights' Plaque

President Truman pledged himself anew yesterday to fight for fulfillment of the Democratic platform promises on civil rights.

He made the pledge after receiving the annual Robert S. Abbott award as the individual who has done most in the past year to advance the ideals of full citizenship without regard to race, creed or color.

The silver plaque was presented in a White House ceremony, by John H. Sengstacke, editor and publisher of the Chicago Defender, Negro weekly.

Truman's Pledge

In accepting it, Mr. Truman said he hoped he will continue to deserve such recognition.

"The statement was made, I think, before the election last fall that the principles for which we are fighting are just as old as the Constitution of the United States and just as new as the Democratic platform of 1948."

"We are pressing for the implementation of that platform and shall continue to press for it until we accomplish the purpose which was set out."

Attending Ceremony

Edward J. Kelly, former Mayor of Chicago, told the President the people on the Defender are very much indebted to him and are not the kind who "blow hot and cold."

Attending the ceremony were Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president, National Council of Negro Women; Walter White, secretary, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Representative Dawson (D., Ill.), and Lester B. Granger, executive director, National Urban League.

The award is in memory of the late Robert S. Abbott, founder and publisher of the Chicago Defender.

Probe of Air Force's Orders For Planes Asked in House

Representative Van Zandt (R., Pa.) yesterday proposed a congressional investigation of the "nature and circumstances" of military airplane purchases.

He introduced a resolution to create a special five-man House committee to inquire, among other things, into "prior or present" connections of any military official with any company that has received aircraft contracts.

Van Zandt said in a statement: "A great deal of information has come to my attention within recent weeks regarding the unusually large purchases of aircraft from Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., controlled by Floyd Odom, a heavy contributor to the Democratic campaign, and a company of which Louis Johnson was, until three days after his nomination as Secretary of Defense by the President, a director and Washington counsel."

Consolidated Vultee makes the B-36, giant bomber on which the Air Force has been concentrating. "I am also informed that to obtain funds for these unusually large contracts, the Air Force has ruthlessly canceled orders from four other aircraft companies," the statement continued.

At the Pentagon, Johnson sent word to reporters he had no comment on Van Zandt's move.

Johnson took over as Secretary of Defense on March 28. In the first half of April, the Air Force announced it was ordering 75 more B-36s under a reallocation of aircraft-purchase funds. The action involved cancellation of several hundred millions of dollars of contracts for other types of planes.

The move had been under study for months. Former Secretary of Defense Forrestal had submitted it to the Munitions Board in January. The proposal also had gone to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the White House for approval.

Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, told reporters Johnson should get a chance to answer "statements and innuendoes" about airplane-purchasing policies, but Vinson said a special congressional investigation is not needed. He said that if the Senate Armed Services Committee does not "give Mr. Johnson his chance, my committee will."

Democrats on "Hill" Reelect All Officers

The Democratic National Congressional Committee announced yesterday the reelection of all officers.

They are Representative Kirwan of Ohio, chairman; Representatives Bulwinkle of North Carolina, Hart of New Jersey and Carroll of Colorado, vice chairmen, and Representative Dawson of Illinois, secretary.

The committee is in charge of party plans for congressional election campaigns throughout the country.

British Charge Soviet Breaks Blockade Pact

Berlin, May 25 (NYT).—British officials charged Soviet authorities today with nine specific breaches of the Big Four agreement that lifted the blockade of Berlin.

The British announcement accompanied publication of a three-power protest made May 19 and of the Russian reply. The three-power protest objected, in general terms, to Russian restrictions imposed on traffic in and out of Berlin since the blockade ended. The Russian reply was a general denial, and also an accusation that the Western allies were interfering with interzonal trade.

The nine points stated by the British:

1. The Soviets continue to demand licensing rights over exports from Berlin.
2. Permits are issued only for four hours each Wednesday and Friday.
3. Some authorities demand documents in Russian, others in German.
4. The Autobahn between Berlin and Helmstedt has been formally closed to German trucks.
5. Rail communications have been restricted to a single route.
6. Soviet officers have been introduced as intermediaries between Allied railway operating officers and German railway authorities.
7. Soviet locomotives have been required on west zone trains.
8. Trains have been limited to 18 and later to 19 daily.
9. The Soviets have been dilatory in issuing barge permits, having so far cleared only 55 of 350 sent them.

striking union they resist making agreements with it.

The Americans maintain that it is the Russians who are responsible for keeping rail traffic moving and why aren't they doing so? The British army, in fact, seems to be enjoying the situation.

In contrast, the Russians are clearly unhappy. Through the Russian-licensed news service today, and in conferences yesterday, they urged American and British authorities to help clean up the mess. For the record they maintain that it is all the fault of the Western Allies, but there is reason to believe that harsh words about the strike have come down from the Big Four Foreign Ministers meeting in Paris and that the Berlin Russians would like to forget the whole thing.

Meanwhile, freight trains are beginning to back up all along the 100 miles of tracks between here and the British zonal border and the British army announced tonight, with what appeared to be almost glee, that they plan to keep pouring the trains in. An official announcement said, "There is no intention on the part of the western powers to fail in their responsibility of dispatching the maximum volume of goods and supplies by rail to Berlin."

Two American passenger trains and one German passenger train have been stalled since 2 p. m. in Potsdam, just outside the city. Attempts are being made to get buses out to the trains to bring the passengers in but Russian border guards, never comfortable in new situations, have so far held them up while they look for someone with authority to let them go.

Christian Hahnebutt, deputy UGO chairman, said a letter was sent tonight offering to place UGO workers at the disposal of the railway, "in order to insure frictionless traffic to Berlin," but the offer was rejected.

The chances are good that some form of agreement will be reached by morning. But "you can not expect us to put our men at work without knowing if and how they will be paid," Mr. Hahnebutt said.

Total agreement appeared to be on the way. Responsible Communist officials, including the Communist Lord Mayor of East Berlin, Friedrich Ebert, have spoken out in favor of granting the strikers' demands for payment in west marks. Since Ebert is generally believed to say what he is told, and nothing more, it can be assumed that he represents official policy. If so, the strike is about to end.

have raised food rations from 1200 to 2500 calories a day. They have raised coal production from 178,000 tons to 340,000 tons a day. They have boosted the production index, based on 1934, from 3' to nearly 90 in three years and multiplied export values by nearly six in a single year.

In the Russian zone, he said, Russia now "owns" 90 to 100 per cent of the chemical industry, from 74 to 79 per cent of other transport industries, 43 per cent of the construction industry and 93 per cent of the fuel industry.

Speaking for British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman as well as for himself, Acheson said:

"We must not content ourselves with drawing new organs on sheets of paper."

He reviewed the history of attempts at Allied cooperation in controlling Germany and the unhappy ending of the experiment with four-power control.

Rejecting any idea may still have that she is going to get the reparations she demands, Acheson said there was no more surplus for reparations in the western occupation zone. Nothing more can be taken, he said, without hurting what the Western Powers have done, at such great cost, to help Germany recovery.

Despite the pessimistic tone of his speech, Acheson said he did not despair.

He also was not optimistic about the advantage of joining the Russian occupation zone to the Western zones, even on Western terms. He was not sure, he said, that the Eastern zone would prove an asset and there were many grounds for fearing it might be a liability.

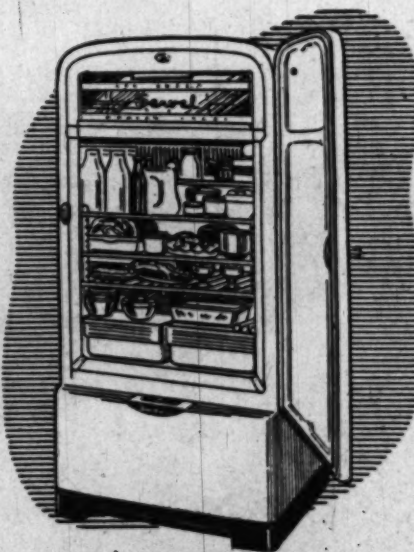

Bevin supported Acheson. In place of Vishinsky's proposal for a new four-power state council, he suggested that a political and economic system such as has been set up in western Germany, and approved by the 44 million Germans there, probably would be satisfactory to the rest of the Germans if the Russians would give them a chance.

Schuman reminded Vishinsky that the Western Allies had played no tricks in their zones like that the Russians played in staging a single-ticket election for a so-called German "people's congress" dominated by Communists.

British Hint Of Retaliation Against Reds

London, May 25 (P).—A Foreign Office spokesman today threatened British retaliation for alleged Soviet actions against British Embassy employees in Moscow.

The spokesman said seven Russian employees of the embassy have disappeared, quit their jobs or been threatened by Soviet police in recent months. In addition, five Britons have been refused or have failed to receive visas so they could go to Moscow to work in the embassy.

He declared it seems the Soviet government is trying to dictate the composition of the embassy staff.

"Incorrect Actions"

The spokesman made his comment after the Moscow radio announced that Russia had rejected as unfounded a British protest that Soviet agencies were guilty of "incorrect actions" against British Embassy personnel.

The spokesman listed these incidents: Two telephone operators, a Mrs. Ackman and a Mrs. Whitehead, disappeared and a third operator, a Mrs. Burke, was "so intimidated by police that she attempted suicide" last October. All three are Soviet wives of British subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Valutin, Soviet citizens, suddenly quit their jobs after being threatened by police. Valutin had been an embassy translator for 22 years.

Fourth Operator Missing

Margaret Yost, a Soviet citizen who had been an embassy housemaid for 13 years, was threatened by police if she did not quit, it was said.

A fourth telephone operator, a Miss Peters, disappeared January 17 while returning to her apartment. Police had tried to persuade her to leave her job.

Citizens Give Loyalty Pledge Anew to Tito

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 25 (AP).—Tens of thousands of Yugoslavs massed in Republic Square today to pledge anew their loyalty to Marshal Tito on his fifty-seventh birthday.

The birthday celebration, which began several weeks ago with the start of relay runs from all corners of Yugoslavia, ended in the square today with the arrival of the greeting bearers. The runners represented the nation's six republics, two autonomous provinces, armed forces, youth and leading worker and peasant organizations.

Borba, Community Party organ, set the tone of the fete with a front page attack on the Communist Information Bureau (Cominform). This time the journal cast aside any pretense that it was anyone but the Russians who were behind the campaign against Tito.

"The fact is that the destructive propaganda against our country is organized by the Communist Party of Bolsheviks and by the Soviet state organ," the newspaper said.

House of Lords Delays Steel Nationalization

London, May 25 (P).—The House of Lords placed tentative approval tonight on plans to nationalize Britain's important iron and steel industry.

But the peers made it clear they would try to keep the industry in private hands until some time after next year's general elections. They gave the government's iron and steel bill a second reading—approval in principle—without taking a vote.

55 Countries Are Represented At Czech Communist Congress

Prague, May 25 (P).—The Czechoslovak Communist party opened what it calls a "political victory" congress today, with representatives from 55 countries attending.

President Klement Gottwald, chairman of the party, spoke at length. He said that all nations except Russia ought to quit meddling in Czechoslovakia's affairs. The others, he added, "should help us in our endeavor to widen economic relations on the basis of equality and without discrimination."

Most of his speech was repeated on the Czech radio from recordings taken at the congress, sessions of which are secret.

He said the country's five-year economic plan must be accomplished. He said Czechoslovakia must prove it can operate more efficiently than under free enterprise.

Introduction of foreign delegations took up most of the time of the first day of the five-day meeting.

Prime Minister Stalin of Russia was listed as an honorary chairman of the congress. Among those attending were Harry Pollitt, British Communist Party secretary; Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist; Samuel Mikunis of Israel; Vasile Luca, Romanian Finance Minister; Wilhelm Pieck, Otto Grotewohl, Walter Ulbricht, Paul Wessel, Max Reimann and Oskar Mueller of both east and west Germany.

(The American Military Government announced in Munich, Germany, that it had refused a permit to Hermann Schirmer, Bavarian Communist leader, to attend the congress because "the trip was not in the interest of the military government and because it does not consider Czechoslovakia a democratic country.")

Reds Fight to Block Shanghai Escape

Shanghai, (Thursday) May 26 (AP).—Shanghai's Communist conquerors fought today for Soochow Creek bridges covering the last Nationalist escape route from the city. They ran into stubborn holdout pockets.

A small Nationalist rear guard still held the bridges. The rolly creek separates the heart of the city from the northern district—and Woosung, the lone government escape port 10 miles north.

The sharp crack of rifles and the chatter of machineguns echoed around the United States consulate general which was now in the midst of this small battlefield. The small arms fire had kept up a night-long tattoo.

The Communists kept inching toward the bridges which span Soochow at intervals westward from the north end of the famous Bund. The Reds had made their way to Peking Road, only one block from the bridges where it runs into the Bund. They had moved up under the cover of darkness.

But the Nationalists, who gave up the broad Yangtze almost without a struggle, still held the sludgy Soochow—a stream a flycatcher could span.

This little band of Nationalists, aided by snipers in nearby buildings, was making a determined delaying action to cover the northward retreat of the government garrison.

All through the first night of Communist rule over the world's fourth largest city, the Reds' big guns had pounded Woosung and the Nationalist escape routes down the Whangpoo River to the sea.

The whole northern horizon was alive with flame. The beaten Nationalists apparently were blowing up fuel, bomb and ammunition dumps as they pulled out.

Destruction of a fuel dump at Kiangwan Airport, midway between Shanghai and Woosung, made it clear the Nationalists had no intention of making any last stand.

All they were doing was trying to delay the Red advance long enough to escape.

It was a night far stormier than any of the three-week siege. The siege was broken abruptly early today when the Communists marched unopposed into the heart of Shanghai.

(Canton, the refugee capital in south China was deep in gloom. A dispatch from there said officials believe Canton will be the next objective. The cabinet met in special session to discuss the situation.)

All communications were cut off to Woosung, 10 miles north of Shanghai.

U. S. Building Trade Bloc to Face Red China

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

The United States is trying to line up a global bloc of nations behind a unified policy for dealing with a communist regime in China.

The aim of this united front is to prevent any hasty recognition of a Communist government and to keep the Chinese Reds from playing one nation off against another in bargaining maneuvers.

State Department officials said this country has talked the matter over with Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and with Pacific nations directly concerned with Chinese relations such as India and Australia.

These informants stressed, however, that the United States has no intention of recognizing a Communist regime immediately and has no timetable for future action.

Wait Nationalist Defeat
In this connection Secretary of State Acheson was reported to have told a Senate committee last week that the United States would not take such action so long as a Chinese Nationalist government exists.

But with the Communist forces rapidly expanding their grip over larger and larger portions of that war-torn country, the future of the Nationalist government is becoming increasingly problematical.

Undersecretary of State Webb told a news conference yesterday that reports of the "united front" drive are a little premature. But he said the United States is in daily contact with other interested governments in an effort to find the best ways for meeting the situation as it develops.

In answer to a question Webb said Russia is not among the countries being consulted.

Reds Must Feed Shanghai
The Communist conquest of Shanghai may speed formation of a new Red government which will demand recognition. But American experts on China believe that the capture of one of the world's greatest cities with a population of about six million persons raises a more urgent problem for the Communist leadership than any strictly political matter. That is the problem of feeding Shanghai.

The United States, through the Economic Cooperation Administration, has played a primary role in feeding the city for many months. Recently congress authorized the ECA to continue spending China relief funds but it barred delivery of any relief supplies to Communist-held areas.

U. S. Steps Up
Evacuation
Hongkong, May 25 (AP).—The United States Navy hopes to have the last "nonessential" American out of Communist-threatened South China within two weeks, informed sources said today.

Most of the Americans in the danger zone are concentrated in this British colony and the nearby Chinese port of Canton. A few are in other cities, notably Amoy, Foochow and Swatow, along the coast between here and Red-held Shanghai.

The sudden fall of Shanghai accelerated efforts to evacuate those Americans who want to leave, but only those in Foochow were in any immediate danger.

Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger, United States commander in the West Pacific, and Minister-Counselor Lewis A. Clark from the diplomatic mission in Canton, met today aboard the admiral's flagship El Dorado to discuss evacuation arrangements.

Later, Badger said he was "well satisfied" with the plans that had been worked out.

Threat to Jail Clark Hinted By McCarran

By the United Press

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) yesterday threw out a veiled threat that his Senate Judiciary Committee might try to jail Attorney General Tom C. Clark to force a court test of President Truman's right to withhold confidential files from Congress.

McCarran circulated a legal brief, prepared by experts in the Library of Congress, which outlined several drastic steps, including the arrest of a Cabinet officer, which might be taken if the Senate "wishes to force the issue."

The memorandum also suggested that Congress might set up its own "FBI" to gather information if the courts rule that executive branch agencies cannot be forced to give up their files.

Seek Data on Aliens

The Judiciary Committee last Saturday served subpoenas on Clark and Assistant Secretary of State John S. Peurifoy requiring them to produce 168 files on the activities of aliens and foreign diplomats in this country. McCarran said his committee needs the information to draft tighter immigration laws to stop Communist spies and saboteurs from entering the country.

No time limit was set in the subpoena. But both Clark and Peurifoy made it plain that they do not intend to produce the records unless directed to do so by the President.

Mr. Truman issued an order to all executive branch officials last year to check with him before complying with congressional subpoenas for confidential files.

Precedent Is Lacking

McCarran, apparently expecting a rebuff, called on the Federal law section of the Library of Congress for advice if Clark, for example, fails to answer the subpoena.

The library replied that there is no "definitive precedent." But it suggested the committee could ask the full Senate to direct the presiding officer to issue a warrant for the arrest of the official, and have the sergeant-at-arms bring him before the bar of the Senate.

"Upon further refusal before the bar of the Senate," the memorandum said, "the Senate could order (1) that the person be continued in the close custody of the sergeant-at-arms, or (2) that he be committed to the common jail of the District of Columbia, or (3) that he be kept by the sergeant-at-arms in close confinement in the guardroom of the Capitol police."

How to Get Court Ruling

The memorandum noted that the President could be expected to seek an immediate writ of habeas corpus to free any executive officer clapped into jail by Congress.

That would make a definitive court pronouncement possible, it said.

If the courts should then rule that the legislative branch does not have the power to compel the executive branch to furnish information, the memorandum went on, "then Congress will, of necessity, be required to set up or enlarge its own investigatory or fact-finding machinery."

McCarran distributed a copy of the brief to each member of the committee.

Red Defendant Fears Fascism

New York, May 25 (U.P.)—The American Communist Party believes that the United States Government is faced with the "ominous danger of fascism," a defendant at the Communist conspiracy trial testified today.

John Gates, editor of the Communist newspaper the Daily Worker, and one of the 11 top Communists on trial, took the stand for the third day.

"The Communist Party taught that the present Government is not Fascist, but that there is ominous danger of fascism in this country," he said.

Gates said the danger of fascism lies in "antislabor legislation like the Taft-Hartley law, witch hunts, terror, lynchings, growing militarism and attempts to outlaw political parties by legislation and judicial methods."

Gates gave the jury his own definition of fascism: "It is total, bloody, violent, gangster rule of the most reactionary sections of big business over the people, as expressed in Hitler Germany."

A-Bomb Scientist Evades Red Query

By the United Press

David Bohm, a Princeton University professor who helped develop the atom bomb, yesterday refused to say whether he is a Communist on grounds it might incriminate him.

The short, slender physicist who worked in the super secret radiation laboratory at Berkeley, Calif., during the war, testified under oath at a closed session of the House committee investigating Un-American activities.

He later confirmed Chairman John S. Wood's announcement he had evaded a question whether he to defend itself. He said its sole purpose is to help foreign-born persons who run into legal difficulties.

As for Clark's requested bill, he said it was "an attack on democracy in this country and on the liberties of all Americans."

FBI Man Tells of Taking Papers From Gubitchev's Pockets Upon Arrest

Robert R. Granville, supervisor of the FBI's New York office, said yesterday he took "some papers" from Valentin A. Gubitchev's pocket when he arrested the Russian and Judith Coplon in midtown Manhattan March 4.

He said another agent "frisked" Gubitchev, a now suspended United Nations employee, a few seconds later.

Granville testified at the espionage trial of Miss Coplon, a former Justice Department employee who is accused of stealing Government secrets to turn over to Gubitchev for transmission to Russia.

He said he confronted the pair as they were "walking and conversing together along Third ave."

He said he then removed the papers from Gubitchev's pocket

"I advised them that I was a special agent of the FBI, and that I was placing them under arrest," he said.

Granville denied he ordered the FBI to tap Miss Coplon's telephone of any member of her family. A Government objection prevented Palmer from getting Granville to say whether he knew of any wire-tapping in the case.

was or was not a member of the Communist Party. Otherwise, he declined to discuss his testimony except to say he had been treated "courteously."

Another atomic scientist, Joseph Weinberg of the University of Minnesota, who had worked with Bohm at Berkeley, testified secretly at an hour-and-15-minute committee session later in the day.

He told newsmen the committee released him from its subpoena, and he now is free to return to Minneapolis. But he refused to answer any questions about his testimony, saying he had an agreement with the committee he would not do so.

To Be Questioned Again
Wood said Bohm was confronted by a "Mrs. Davis of New York," but that she was unable to identify him. Wood refused to give any details of Mrs. Davis' background or explain why it was believed she might know Bohm.

He said the professor will be questioned again at an open hearing Friday.

The committee is investigating charges that a Red spy ring operated at the Berkeley laboratory during the war. It contends secret information on atomic developments were given to Arthur Alexandrovich Adams, described as a "super spy" who fled to Russia in 1945.

Bohm, accompanied by Clifford Durr, a former member of the Federal Communications Commission who served as his counsel, was closeted with the committee for 35 minutes.

A House Judiciary subcommittee meantime was urged by the American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born to reject Attorney General Clark's request for legislation to permit him to hold undesirable aliens without bail until they can be deported.

"An Attack on Democracy"
The group is on Clark's list of "subversive" organizations.

Adner Green, executive secretary, refused to say whether he was a Communist on grounds "a person's political beliefs is not an issue at this hearing."

He said Clark cited his organization "without any hearing" and without giving the group a chance

Lilienthal Asks Fast Verdict on Mismanagement Charge

The comparison between civilian and military control was regarded as an indirect reply to those congressional critics who have hinted at a return to military control.

President Truman and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson have both taken the position that control of the atom must remain in civilian hands.

Suggested Tests

The tests suggested by Lilienthal are:

1. Has the commission failed in its stewardship at a time of great tension in its obligation paramount to all others; i. e., the production and improvement of these complex scientific weapons? What is the state of our atomic weapons—the order of magnitude of the stockpile; the improvements made in the past 2½ years in new weapon design. What has been the progress in the past 2½ years of our stewardship? What is the progress today in still further improvements, and the quality of personnel and the morale of those engaged in this work?

2. How about production of fissionable materials—the essential ingredients of atomic weapons? Is it on a secure basis? What situation did the project face concerning disruption of production and how successful were the steps taken to overcome them? We assert, and our reports to you have made clear, that production is now at the highest level in history, with the same facilities; that new facilities are approaching the production state.

What of Research Progress?

3. How has basic and applied research progressed since the Commission took responsibility—and where was it when the Commission took over?

4. How about security? What was the state of physical protection of plants when the Commission took over? Has this improved, and in what ways?

What about security of secret documents—what was the situation when the commission began, and what is it today?

What about accountability for source and fissionable materials? What was the situation in 1947? What is it today?

5. What about investigation and clearance of personnel—what was the situation, and what is it today? Lilienthal asked that in order to arrive at a fair determination of this picture and to settle "fears and misapprehensions" as quickly as possible the committee call not only members and staff of the commission but "distinguished members of the General Advisory Council," citizens of high renown and technical standing, and the principal industrial and university contractors of the commission.

Touched Off by Lost U-235

The current inquiry into the commission by both the Joint Committee and the Senate Appropriations subcommittee was touched off by the disappearance last February of one ounce of the fissionable U-235 from the Argonne laboratory at the University of Chicago, and by the discovery that an AEC fellowship had been awarded an acknowledged Communist for work in a nonsecret field. Six-sevenths of the missing U-235 has been recovered, the commission has announced, from containers of so-called "waste" products sent to Oak Ridge, Tenn.

McMahon yesterday announced the appointment of Dr. Ernest Thiele, Assistant Director of Research of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, to act as the committee's consultant in the matter of the reported loss of the U-235.

Dr. Thiele, who has been a member of Standard Oil's research staff for 24 years, will check on the investigation and render "an independent report" to the committee, McMahon said. The Joint Committee chairman declared that Dr. W. H. Zinn of the Argonne laboratory has reported that all the material, with the exception of one-eighth of an ounce has been recovered.

McCarran Asks Removal

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, yesterday joined his voice to those calling for the removal of Lilienthal.

"I hope Mr. Lilienthal is removed from his present position because I think he is unworthy of the place," McCarran said.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), however, familiar with Lilienthal's operations at TVA, pleaded against haste or snap judgment in rating Lilienthal's administration of the atomic program.

"I am certainly not going to join in indicting him before getting all the facts in the case," Kefauver said.

In Tremendous Operation

"Lilienthal is in a tremendously big operation, pioneering in new fields, and the opportunity for mistakes is large. As a man I have complete confidence in him."

In his letter to McMahon, the commission chairman himself acknowledged that mistakes were made, although he stoutly defended the over-all record of his stewardship.

"That in an enterprise requiring the services of some 60,000 human beings there have been mistakes and errors goes without saying; this has been freely admitted," he said.

"Working with the atom does not make human beings perfect and beyond error. For these errors and mistakes the commission has and will continue to accept full responsibility. The failure to follow explicit commission regulations in the matter of the uranium oxide at the Argonne laboratory is such an instance."

Reports Not Made Public

Three committee staff investigators sent to Chicago and Oak Ridge last week in connection with the missing U-235 have returned but their reports have not been made public.

The committee went into executive session together with two representatives of the Appropriations Subcommittee, Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) yesterday to hear Rear Admiral John J. Gingrich, former AEC security officer now recalled to active duty.

Gingrich denied waiting reporters published reports that he had resigned in disgust. He said he resigned to accept the duty as chief of staff in the Pacific.

McMahon said the admiral has recommended ways and means to strengthen security within the commission and its installations.

Earlier in the day, Norman J. Halter, personal representative of Gov. John W. Bonner (D., Mont.) held a press conference in the office of Representative Wesley A. D'Ewart (R., Mont.) criticizing the commission for acting on what he said was a doubtful engineering report on the location of a nuclear reactor plant in Idaho. Montana has been trying to get the plant.

"Unless and until the commission realizes its responsibility to welcome constructive criticism it will itself cause grave agitation to return control to the military," Halter, a physicist said.

FBI's Aid Requested In Reuther Shooting

And Hawaii Strike Ching Acts For End of Bus Dispute

Cyrus C. Ching, chief of the United States Conciliation Service, yesterday intervened in a move to settle two of the Nation's most bitter labor disputes.

He wired officials of the Northland Grayhound Lines and the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (AFL) urging them to meet with a panel of three Federal mediators in a new effort to resolve a walkout which began April 27.

In a second wire, Ching urged that a board of "outstanding and qualified citizens" be selected by the governor of Hawaii to seek means of ending the strike of CIO stevedores, which began April 30.

Efforts Futile So Far

The Governor of Minnesota and other State officials have tried in vain to find a solution to the wage dispute between Grayhound and its employees. "In view of the great inconvenience suffered by the public due to the discontinuance of transportation service by the buses," Ching urged representatives of the union and company to meet with a panel of conciliators next Tuesday.

The Hawaiian dispute involves 2000 stevedores in Harry Bridges Longshoreman's Union. The union walked out when seven stevedoring companies there refused to grant a request for a wage hike of 32 cents an hour. Before the war, the differential between stevedore wages in Hawaii and the West Coast was 10 cents; the pay difference is now 42 cents. The companies have offered 12 cents an hour raise.

Affected by Sugar Dispute

One of the difficulties in settling this dispute is the fact that currently wage negotiations are also under way between the sugar workers, also in Bridges' union, and the sugar companies. Any raise in stevedore wages is bound to affect the wage negotiations in the sugar industry, which is presently suffering from a decline in sales.

Ching urged that a fact finding board be set up by Gov. Ingram M. Stalnack to recommend a settlement of the controversy.

Detroit, May 25 (AP)—FBI action to solve the second shotgun shooting of a member of the Reuther family was demanded today.

This time, the victim was quiet, scholarly Victor Reuther. His assailant has not been identified.

The 37-year-old educational director of the CIO United Auto Workers lay in Henry Ford Hospital, his right eye removed in an operation this afternoon. He was shot at close range last night at his home.

Although Reuther's general condition was reported as "satisfactory" following the operation, Dr. James Olson said he had to "abandon hope of saving the eye." A great deal of tissue was destroyed, he said.

Communist Plot Suspected

Suspicion of a communist plot flared anew.

A Red attack on the UAW leadership was one theory pursued in the unsolved shooting last year of Walter Reuther, CIO United Auto Workers president. Walter is Victor's oldest brother.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams, national CIO President Philip Murray, the Michigan CIO and Detroit's city council all asked FBI intervention.

The Justice Department should enter the case "before the trail grows cold," Ferguson said. "Those who commit such crimes must be taught it cannot happen in the United States of America."

He urged that no time be wasted quibbling over whether the FBI had authority to enter the case.

A move was also under way in the House Labor Committee for a congressional investigation.

Anti-Communist activities of the Reuther brothers over many years pointed up the Red angle.

The Reuthers have fought side by side to build one of the greatest unions. At the same time, they have worked to stamp out communism.

Arriving at the hospital with his arm still in a sling from last year's wounds, Walter Reuther saw his brother's face, torn by six bullet slugs.

Tears came to his eyes as he looked at his brother.

"The dirty..." Walter said. "They tried to get me and now they're after Vic."

This time police had slightly more to go on than before.

They were seeking to find the owner of a cheap double-barreled shotgun left at the scene. They also had casts of a heel print.

The assassin fired through a window around midnight. Victor was eating a late snack. Slugs narrowly missed his wife Sophie, who was on a couch nearby. Their three children were upstairs asleep.

Lewis Defy Delays Talks On Contract

Bluefield, W. Va., May 25 (AP)—John L. Lewis hurled a challenge at Southern coal operators today to prove they can speak for enough soft coal tonnage to make a new contract under their own by-laws.

The action forced a 24-hour delay in contract talks.

The big "rowed" leader of the United Mine Workers, rocking confidently on his heels before a huge roomful of miners and operators, said he was present at the start of negotiations with the Southern Coal Producers Association merely because the Taft-Hartley Act forced him to be there.

He said refusal to attend after SPCA President Joseph E. Moody gave notice the contract would terminate June 30, would lay the miners open to "the pain and penalty of legal sanctions."

Moody obtained a court injunction against Lewis a year ago to force him to admit the Southern association into national bargaining conferences.

Lewis said the termination notice was "accepted by the United Mine Workers."

"It amounts to a declaration that no contract will exist between the Southern Coal Producers Association and the mine workers as of June 30," he added.

Then Lewis pointed out that the Virginia and Winding Gulf associations, two of the member groups within the SPCA, had withdrawn from the contract talks just before they began. In addition, there are other companies with "tonnage of magnitude" who are not taking part, he said.

Lewis said there was a legal question whether he could bargain with these associations at conferences which might be arranged in the North or elsewhere, so long as they were members of the SPCA. The Southern association is organized to bargain for its own members.

That might leave these rebel groups without a way to negotiate a contract by June 30—a fact which could lead to a shutdown of their mines July 1 under the union's "no contract, no work" policy.

The conference adjourned until 3 p.m. (EST) tomorrow.

Maryland Farm Hand Arraigned in Rape Of Two Baby Nieces After Arrest in District

Ferndale, Md., May 25 (Special). Willard Lee Gray was committed to the Anne Arundel County jail without bond tonight following arraignment before Magistrate Hugh K. Holmes. Gray is charged with raping his two baby nieces in their home near here Monday night.

Wearing a shabby blue serge suit, Gray simply nodded when informed by Magistrate Holmes of the charges that have been placed against him.

Holmes set June 7 at 7 p. m. as the date of preliminary hearing. The hearing will be held in the courtroom in the one-story Mountain Road station of county police, about four miles southeast of Glen Burnie, where he was arraigned tonight.

The hearing took place less than half a mile away from the one-story frame house where the little girls, aged 2 and 3, were attacked during their parents' absence Monday night.

Present in the courtroom was the children's 23-year-old mother who sat unperturbed through the brief hearing. She was accompanied by her sister-in-law who is a sister of the accused man, but the baby's father was not present.

Gray, 34, of Quicksburg, Va., a gaunt-faced farm laborer with sore red eyes, confessed to the sex offenses, police announced. He was arrested in the Greyhound Bus Terminal in Washington at about 4 a. m. yesterday.

After an hour's questioning at headquarters in Washington, police said, Gray admitted raping his 2-year-old niece and fondling her 3-year-old sister.

Gray waived extradition and was turned over to Anne Arundel County police who took him to the Ferndale, Md., jail.

Meanwhile, the 2-year-old girl remained in serious condition at Mercy Hospital in Baltimore. The older child was reported in fair condition. Both suffered from shock and lacerations.

"This is the worst case I've ever seen," said Dr. S. J. DeMarco, Jr., who is treating the children.

The scene of the rape is in Pasadena, Md., about 4 miles from Glen Burnie.

Washington sex squad detectives who questioned Gray said he told them he had agreed to watch the two girls Monday night while the parents attended a movie in Glen Burnie. He told them, they said, that he had been drinking a "whole lot of beer."

Police said Gray in a signed statement also related this story: He stopped touching the older girl when she began to cry, then criminally attacked the two-year-old girl. When the mother returned, he explained the evident bloodstains by saying he had suffered a nose bleed.

At her request, he went to the nearby White Eagle Tavern to get the children's father, who is Gray's brother. After telling his brother his wife wanted him, Gray bought some beer and left the tavern.

He wandered down a road, lay on the ground, drank the beer and fell asleep. He was frightened and

16 Convictions

'Dangerous' Sex Subject Committed

A man who had been convicted 16 times for indecent exposure was ordered to St. Elizabeths Hospital yesterday for treatment as a sexual psychopath.

The man, Julian Foreman, 28, a truck driver, of 1219 12th st. n.w., was last convicted in February on complaint of a woman, who also had testified against him in 1946.

Municipal Judge Walter J. Casey ordered the commitment after hearing testimony from Dr. Joseph Gilbert and Dr. Amino Peretti, Gallinger psychiatrists, that Foreman suffered from "an uncontrollable urge" to expose himself.

They also testified that Foreman may be considered "potentially dangerous."

Eugene La Rochelle, defense attorney, urged that his client be permitted to take private psychiatric treatment, but the Gallinger physicians asserted intensive supervised psychiatric care was needed over a period of time.

Argentina Celebrates Break with Old Spain

Buenos Aires, May 25 (U.P.)—President Juan D. Peron led Argentina today in observing the 139th anniversary of the declaration of independence from Spain. A Te Deum officiated by Santiago Cardinal Copello at the Metropolitan Cathedral opened the ceremonies. It was attended by Peron, his cabinet, the foreign diplomatic corps and high officials.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or heavy urination with burning and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 25 (U.P.)—A State witness testified today that blonde Sydney Rutledge, 23, wore eye-catching attire in the office where she held frequent social converse with Byron C. Hattman, the man her husband killed after he seduced her.

Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, 28 St. Louis baby doctor, is on trial on a charge of first degree murder.

Ray Strother, employee of the Emerson Electric Co., St. Louis, where both Sydney and Hattman worked, testified that she was dressed in an "outstanding way" at the office. Spectators laughed.

He mentioned a "light white sweater," but this testimony was stricken when the defense objected.

Strother was among a number of State rebuttal witnesses who told of Sydney loitering frequently at Hattman's desk at the office. She testified that Hattman pursued her and seduced her forcibly in the Rutledge apartment last July 31.

Juanita Lewis, an attractive brunette, told of seeing Sydney at Hattman's desk "at least two or three times a day" from July 23 to about August 6.

'Abdomen Baby' Born Alive, First Such at Gallinger

Live birth of an infant who developed in his mother's abdomen outside the womb was reported yesterday by Dr. Phillip A. E. Stebbing, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital.

Both the 5-pound, 11-ounce child and his mother were reported doing well yesterday, 24 hours after the surgical delivery.

The case, first live birth of its kind at Gallinger, is considered "very rare" in surgical practice. In eight previously-recorded abdominal pregnancies at Gallinger the infants were all delivered dead, Dr. Stebbing said.

On getting back he went on out to his brother's home at his sister-in-law's request—and there found his body in the basement toilet. Police said the bullet with which Roper shot himself in the skull emerged from the left front of his head.

The Roper family has been prominent locally from the days of the late Daniel Calhoun "Uncle Dan" Roper of South Carolina, who was Franklin Roosevelt's first Secretary of Commerce.

Before that they were well-known here, for Daniel Roper first came to Washington in 1894 and since then, except for 12 years of private legal practice, had served in various Government positions.

Another of his sons, and brother of Richard Fred Roper, is Col. Harry McK. Roper, who is on duty with the special weapons project of the Department of the Army here.

Toilet Water To Scent Pool

Rita a big, flashy Italian automobile, and he is believed to have a few other trinkets tucked away for last-minute surprises.

Rita Plans to Continue Hollywood Career

Cannes, France, May 25 (P).—Rita Hayworth will acknowledge Prince Aly Khan as household boss in their marriage Friday, but has no intention of giving up her movie career.

The actress' agent, John Hyde, announced today both will head back to Hollywood before a year is out, perhaps by October. The lure in Rita's case is a resumption of $5000-a-week movie work, said Hyde, and the lure in Aly's case is the West Coast horse tracks.

"I found Rita keyed up and a little on the tense side, but very anxious to resume her artistic career," Hyde said. "Moreover, Prince Aly approves completely."

That's a factor because the French marriage act which will unite Rita and Aly in the Vallauris town hall provides:

"The husband is the head of the family. The choice of residence of the family belongs to the husband. The wife is obliged to live with him and he is obliged to receive her."

Alert Police Work

U. S. Park Police did an unusually good job in identifying an escaped Maryland rapist after he had been listed by both Metropolitan Police and the FBI as "not wanted." The convict, picked up wandering in Rock Creek Park during Sunday night's storm, had been sentenced to life imprisonment in 1939 and had escaped from the Maryland Hospital for the Criminally Insane in 1941. Although the man had been arrested by Metropolitan Police no fewer than 10 times subsequent to his escape, his previous record was not discovered because of the apparent failure of Maryland authorities to put out an adequate lookout. It is all the more to the credit of Park Police investigators that they were not satisfied with the "not wanted" reply to their query and deduced that it was too early for a convict under life sentence to be running free. This is the sort of intelligent perseverance by law enforcement officers that deserves the gratitude of the community.

Delaying Statehood

Two and a half months ago the House Committee on Public Lands approved bills to grant statehood to Hawaii and Alaska. On March 8 and March 10, respectively, these bills were committed to the whole House and thence referred to the Rules Committee for assignment to a place on the docket. For two months nothing happened. Then by unanimous vote the Public Lands Committee authorized its chairman, Representative Peterson, to introduce resolutions discharging both bills from the Rules Committee. Under House procedure these cannot come up for consideration on the floor until June 13.

In the meantime, apparently spurred by the discharge resolutions, the Rules Committee has given the Alaska bill a hearing and may do so for the Hawaii bill. The long delay in Rules Committee action, and its obvious reluctance to act now, is puzzling, to say the least. The explanation apparently lies in behind-the-scenes political shenanigans. Certainly the merits of statehood for either of the suppliant Territories is not in question. The substantive issues have been repeatedly investigated by congressional committees and the applications of both Hawaii and Alaska approved. There is neither need nor purpose in further inquiry by the Rules Committee.

The political considerations supposed to be involved are not very clear. But the suspicion will not down that jockeying within the Rules Committee to get one bill ahead of the other is in reality a technique of killing them both. This wire-pulling for precedence does not reflect any jealousy between the applicant Territories. Neither Hawaii nor Alaska cares particularly which is the forty-ninth and which the fiftieth State.

Hawaii has been beating on the door of statehood for at least 15 years, Alaska for a shorter time. The arguments in favor of admission, though somewhat different in each case, are equally conclusive. There are more than half a million citizens of the United States in Hawaii and about 100,000 in Alaska. The great majority in each want the responsibilities as well as the privileges of statehood. They ought not to be denied equal status in these United States any longer. Justice and good sense require the Rules Committee to send both bills to the floor without further delay.

Charter For Germany

The signing of the Bonn Constitution helps to explain why the Western Foreign Ministers so quickly rejected Mr. Vishinsky's plan to go back to the four-power mechanisms of 1945 in all of Germany. The new constitution is a reality, and makes it pointless for the Russians now to try to turn the clock back to Potsdam. It is the culmination of more than two years of effort by the Western allies to lift western Germany out of ruin and despair. Much of this effort has gone into economic rehabilitation; without economic recovery the western zones would have become a slum in the heart of Europe and a drain on the resources of the occupying powers. But there has also been a parallel and persistent effort to implant democratic concepts into west German soil. It will take at least a generation to show whether this new German democracy can survive; the adoption of the new constitution at least suggests that the seed is sprouting.

The constitution itself is Teutonic in its thoroughness. It tries to guard against every possible dispute over its interpretation, and in the process becomes so complex as to be unwieldy and perhaps unworkable. It may turn out to be no more permanent than the choice of the little university town of Bonn as the capital of the new German republic. Yet, whatever its defects, the constitution is an improvement in at least three ways over the Weimar constitution of 1919. It rightly leaves enormous powers in the hands of the Laender; it avoids proportional representation, which encouraged a multiplicity of parties and helped to frustrate the Weimar Republic; and it specifically guarantees the basic freedoms to the two thirds of the people of Germany who live in the western zones. The Bonn Constitution offers a basis for bringing the eastern zone into a genuinely democratic and federalistic Germany, if the Soviet masters of the eastern zone would agree.

Mr. Acheson has said he would not agree to any plan for a unified Germany which did not safeguard civil rights and fundamental freedoms for all Germans. If the Russians do not accept the guarantees contained in the Bonn charter—and there is little to suggest they will—then the course of the west Germans and the Western allies is clear. It is to push ahead as quickly as possible with the integration of western Germany into western Europe. The Bonn Constitution gives the German people the same liberties that are constitutionally guaranteed to the people of Germany's non-Communist neighbors: Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and Switzerland. This should make it easier to bring the new German republic into the Organization for European Economic Cooperation and into the new Council of Europe. The only hope for a peaceful and stable Europe, as General Clay told Congress, is "that we try to develop a Germany which sees Germany not alone but as a part of a new European concept."

Thoughts In Arlington

James Forrestal is at last resting in peace in the Arlington National Cemetery. It is a fit dwelling for a man who gave of himself without stint in behalf of the country he loved and served. But, as in so many other things of recent years, he would have been in two minds about the pomp attendant upon his putting away. The humility in him rejected all forms and modes of grief and show as the surpluses of life. He absorbed the best in those around him, and he has endowed them in turn with the best in him. His friends, however, report a late change in his intellectual, if not personal, attitude toward ceremony. Its larger purpose dawned on him—the purpose of expressing a sense of community. Perhaps, then, he would not have objected to yesterday's impressive ritual.

But, we dare say, he would have minded the fierce contention and the lack of sense of values (of which Mr. Peterson's adjoining letter is an example) that his death has given rise to. It is improper to use this saddest of events as a stick with which to belabor the Administration. What if the Administration did not want him to remain as Secretary of Defense? As Mr. Lippmann has said, Forrestal believed himself that rotation of offices is necessary to keep government both efficient and representative. And he had expressed such a view to the President. Perhaps Forrestal himself should have been shifted when he showed the first sign of strain in his long spell of front-line duty in the cold war. The bane of our public life is the timorousness shown toward change when change is essential to the public good. In this respect the United States is regarded by students of government as the least ruthless of all countries. In this case the plain fact is that Mr. Forrestal had long been under pressure from his own friends to quit.

It is doubtless true that Forrestal's strain was worsened by one or two commentators. We castigated their below-the-belt attacks (egged on and fed, no doubt, by faithless officeholders) before Mr. Forrestal died. The question, however, has to be asked: Why do they thrive? They thrive, it seems to us, on public distrust of official sources of the news and the way it is treated. If this be granted, the remedy is clear. Much of the influence of the calumniators could be undermined by less concealment on the part of the authorities and more frankness on the part of the public prints.

But some of the newspaper fraternity don't seem to see it that way. They give countenance to the talk about more restraint on the press generally. This, in our view, misses the point. And it is a highly dangerous tangent. It lumps together the watchdog and the hound of the chase of Chesterton's essay. Both look alike, but their habits are vastly different. Access to the news and free comment are both in enough jeopardy in the world without inviting further jeopardy. After all, the vilifiers are in the same category as the smearers in Congress. But nobody blames the system of representative government for the excesses of its investigation committees. The same sense of proportion should rule in this matter of erring journalists. The watchdog is too precious an animal in safeguarding our institutions to be muzzled. Our own news policy toward Drew Pearson, for instance, is to try to separate the watchdog from the hound of the chase.

A truce, then, to these contentions. Let us think what the best living memorial to Forrestal should consist of. Senator Morse in Congress suggests the new bill on unification of the armed services. We ourselves feel that the whole scheme of Hoover reorganization should have that honor. Nothing was closer to Forrestal's mind and heart than the streamlining of the administration of Government. The sprawling nature of the administrative branch bothered his precise mind. He had made careful surveys of foreign services, seeking experience of what others were doing to meet modern needs, and his greatest contribution in his last years, undoubtedly, was to the Hoover Commission. Action on its recommendations would be a constructive testimonial to James Forrestal.

Secrets Or Sensations

To the extent that the congressional inquiry into atomic security serves to put the Atomic Energy Commission on its toes, the current rash of finger pointing may have a useful result. Chairman Lillenthal now has admitted that the commission was derelict in not reporting to the FBI at once the loss of a minute quantity of uranium. Certainly this indicates lax security checks. But Mr. Lillenthal hardly can be charged personally with a violation of security regulations about which he was not even informed until late. In this respect his willingness to assume guilt merely furnishes ammunition to the vindictive sensationalists who are out to crucify him—and civilian control of atomic energy.

The point to remember—and it cannot be emphasized enough—is that the security value of the missing uranium is almost precisely nil. No atom "secrets" can be learned from it. Most of the lost U-235 has been recovered and positively identified through analysis of laboratory wastes. It is probable that there is a perfectly natural explanation for the disappearance of the bottle originally containing the smidgeon of U-235. The bottle was similar to thousands of other bottles at the Argonne laboratory. It could easily have been broken or accidentally discarded. Laboratory personnel were negligent in trying to clear up the mystery themselves instead of immediately notifying the FBI. But this was carelessness, not conspiracy.

It is disingenuous to attempt to magnify these circumstances into a full-blown security scare. Likewise, it is pure maliciousness to imply, from an off-the-cuff remark by AEC General Manager Carroll Wilson, that atom secrets have been stolen. Mr. Wilson was asked a hypothetical question whether any AEC "plans" have been stolen. He replied that out of millions of documents probably some have been taken. Certainly such a statement involving vast numbers of nonsecret papers cannot fairly be regarded as an admission that atomic secrets have been stolen.

Altogether, the attacks on Mr. Lillenthal and the irresponsible and undocumented charges that the AEC is "shot through" with Communist sympathizers are indicative of a fear obsession with a new force that the inquisitors know very little about. There is a great need for more intelligent criticism of the Atomic Energy Commission—and in this respect the Joint Commission on Atomic Energy has been a suppliant rather than the watchdog intended by the Atomic Energy Act. But more intelligent criticism—and understanding—depend on limiting, rather than enlarging, the areas of secrecy. The danger, from the sort of hysterical nonsense now being spread, is that atomic energy may be halted off permanently from the people in a military preserve from which it cannot be extricated.

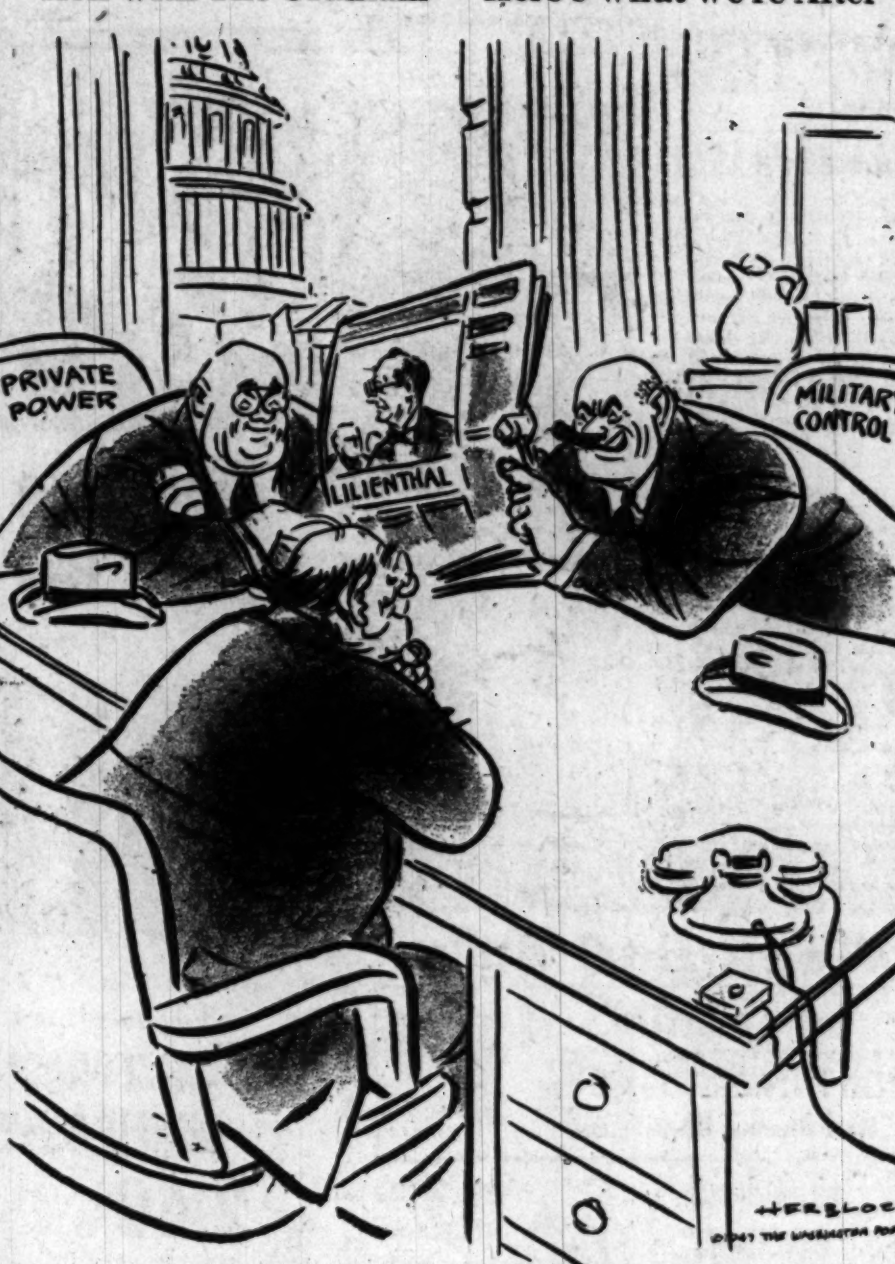

Terrorism

The methods of the would-be assassin who shot Walter Reuther more than a year ago and the assailant of his brother Victor are so similar as to suggest that both these cowardly attacks were the work of the same criminal. But even if the assault on Victor Reuther was the work of an imitator, it was undoubtedly encouraged by the failure of the authorities to bring to trial the man who tried to murder his more famous brother. The fact that this earlier assault remains shrouded in mystery is a serious reflection on the competence of the Detroit police force to deal with the turbulent elements of that great industrial city.

Walter Reuther now believes that both attacks were the work of hired assassins directed against "pro-American and pro-democratic trade unionism." That might be true, since Mr. Reuther in his rise to power in the UAW made bitter enemies among leftwing radical elements and was responsible for a purge of numerous UAW jobholders after his election to the presidency of the union. His anti-Communist drive inevitably gives rise to a suspicion that Communist plotting was responsible for both assaults. However, this is mere assumption, without a vestige of direct proof. To jump to conclusions about the motivation of these crimes might, indeed, hamper police efforts to apprehend the guilty man or men. For it is also quite possible, as Walter Reuther himself once suggested, that the shots were fired by a crackpot who had some personal grievance, real or fancied, against the labor leader and members of his family. Or in the present instance it may be that one, or more, of the Ford strikers, some of whom are said to be bitterly opposed to Walter Reuther's latest arbitration proposals, decided to emulate the terroristic tactics of the unknown assailant who struck last year.

These and other possibilities that will occur to anyone with even a slight knowledge of the hatred engendered by the factional rivalries that rend trade unions emphasize the importance of running down the criminal instead of indulging in speculation about the motives behind the attacks. Unfortunately, these assaults are not "un-American tricks," as Walter Reuther charges. They are characteristic forms of violence, only too common in our great cities where crime, organized and unorganized, takes a heavy toll of life and property. And they are crimes that can only be suppressed by vigorous work on the part of law-enforcement officers in apprehending and punishing the guilty.

"Hell With The Uranium — Here's What We're After"

Letters To The Editor

"Emergency Strikes"

I have just read your splendid editorial, of May 21, on "Emergency Strikes." I must, nevertheless, disagree with you on the provision suggested that the President be given the right to enjoin a strike and/or to seize a plant in an emergency.

Experience has proved, during the war, particularly, that if the State seizes a factory, the same managers operate it, with some Government bureaucrat at the head. What is more, and worse, the profits still flow to the owners who thus suffer no substantial loss. In some cases they have provoked the seizure, just as they provoke strikes, at times.

In order that the new law be deprived of the prejudice against labor, as in the case in the Taft-Hartley Act, cited by you, it is essential that whenever labor's constitutional rights are abridged, that a quid pro quo be exacted from management—that is, that so long as the workers are deprived of their rights, just that long will management be deprived of all profits flowing to the plant's owners, and that these profits shall not be calculated in the firm's income tax reports either as profits or losses, nor be returned to the firm at a later date.

Though this could still be utilized as an anti-labor weapon, it seems to me to be the bare minimum labor should demand if its rights are to be destroyed by the injunctive process in an emergency.

GLADYS B. MORTIMER,
Baltimore.

Anti-Segregation Rider

I know from Mr. Hodding Carter's articles in your issue of May 8 that he could not have been present in the Senate at the debate on the Federal housing bill. Needless to say while minorities welcome his friendship we are not looking for appeasers of injustice nor apologists for the "hallelujah" liberals.

Senator Douglas was first elected to public office as an alderman for a ward in Chicago which had a 40 per cent colored population. He became known at that time as a great liberal because of his supposedly sincere and outspoken friendship for minorities. In the November election Douglas received 160,000 votes in the colored districts of Illinois.

It is natural for minorities to expect him never to raise his voice against legislation for the improvement of their rights, especially when he claimed to favor the very legislation which he spoke and voted against.

To imply, as Mr. Carter did, that Douglas was the only Northern Senator who spoke against the Bricker amendment is carrying attempted heroics a little too far. The record shows that Senators Kilgore, Humphrey and Taylor spoke against it, and that Senator Myers read an editorial against it on the record.

Usually amendments are added to bills when some injustice is being created, a constitutional right voided, or for some such reason. The only way to avoid these miscarriages of justice in a bill is to amend it on the floor. The Bricker amendment was an attempt to eliminate segregation and discrimination from all Federally supported housing projects. This certainly conforms to true democratic principles.

Graduation Pomp

I sometimes wonder about the actual effect of commencement exercises on the graduates. What offers more conjecture is the significance of the ceremony in for the pomp and glory of the alma mater, honorary degrees are handed out and, generally, everyone feels it is an important occasion.

Wouldn't a well-planned seminar with small groups of the graduates headed by some men responsible in industry, fields of banking, exporting, shipping and other occupations of interest to the students, be of practical use? In this way the student could take stock of himself, get some sound practical advice, if not some good leads, and benefit from the "graduation exercises."

"The Tragedy Of James Forrestal"

The pillory of press scandal-mongers aimed at James Forrestal in life continues in your May 23 editorial, "The Tragedy Of James Forrestal." I am certain your judgment that Forrestal was a failure is as biased as the suggestion in your editorial that although Forrestal was a voracious reader, he really didn't comprehend what he read. Your only kind words in a long editorial are few: "honest," "natural," "loyal," "sincere."

Although I am inured to the oracular scribbles of editorial writers and columnists, I was astounded by the omniscience of your editorial in diagnosing without qualifications a man's appraisal of self and the motives which led him to commit suicide. Here is a new low in editorialism and a new high in psychoanalytic presumption—an exceedingly shocking and shoddy performance.

I can give first-hand account of the work Forrestal did. He was a tireless, able, devoted public servant. His driving ambition was not of self, but to enhance the security of his country. To this end as Undersecretary and Secretary of the Navy he was an important architect of our victory in the past war.

As the pioneer Secretary of Defense, he kept the efficiency of our armed services at a high level while at the same time effecting major steps toward their unification in fact. He, as much as anyone in the Government, kept this Nation alive to the possibility of Russian aggression, and it was in large measure through his insistence on a tough and realistic policy that we have witnessed the recent turn in our favor in the cold war.

You have wronged a man of fine character whose devotion to his country's welfare resulted in his tragic death.

HOWARD C. PETERSEN,
Former Assistant Secretary of War,
Philadelphia.

Whoever wrote it, your May 23 editorial, "The Tragedy Of James Forrestal," is a masterpiece. Moreover, it is a rare example of what may be done with the English language in competent hands motivated by refined intelligence. In all the comment I have read in this sad ending of a useful life, your editorial stands out preeminent.

I have clipped this contribution to beautiful and appropriate prose to preserve in a scrap book

Support Of Public Men

By Malvina Lindsay

Flowers For The Living

THERE WERE many mourners and much praise for James Forrestal yesterday at Arlington National Cemetery, and throughout the city people still were awed by his tragic death, still talking about it. They seemed to be groping for an answer to the unspoken question: Couldn't something have been done?

When tragedy overtakes a public man, most citizens feel a little guilty. Whether or not they admired him or agreed with him, their consciences are pricked by the load all public officials must carry and the criticism they must endure.

This criticism is part of democratic government. Some of it is salutary. Some of it is carping, unjust, even vicious. What the public may unconsciously regret is not so much the criticism, but that some of the flowers and eulogizing couldn't have helped the official when he most needed it.

It is the age-old regret the living feel about the dead. In the death of an overburdened public man it is multiplied. For everyone knows—when it is too late—how desperately he needed some rejuvenating shots of faith in himself.

WHAT COULD have been done for Mr. Forrestal matters now only in its relation to other hard-driven officials: The national tensions that lie ahead, probably for many years, will make the work of anyone who enters public service exhausting and nerve wrecking. In times of insecurity and stress people look for public cats to kick.

Presidents frequently are shocked at the human frustration, querulousness or bête. "You Americans are so hard on your Presidents!" a British author exclaimed after voicing her surprise at finding President Truman "so much finer personally than he had been pictured."

However, with Presidents there is better balance of the adulation with the blame. The response they get from the public is not so one-sided as that which high Government officials and members of Congress receive.

Many new members of the Senate and House are now getting their baptism of public nagging and fault-finding. One young member of the House recently was especially low in spirit because of the incessant pressure and criticism of a powerful tycoon of his State. "Forget it," a friend advised. "Think of all the people who voted for you because they believed in the things you campaigned for."

"Oh, but they never write or telegraph," replied the Congressman. Another young and idealistic Representative who was riding a tide of hostile mail, took of it inspired from a single source) was also advised to think of the people back at him. "But I never hear from my friends," he exclaimed.

PROBABLY nothing can be done about the unjust criticism or even vilification public men endure. Probably nothing can be done about the gossiping, rumor mongering, innuendo, "politicizing" that we latter day Lilliputians practice in our governmental offices. Probably nothing will be done about the man-killing load of work and responsibility high officials carry, or about the social and other trivial demands made on them.

But something could be done to give them a better balance relation to the public they serve. Why should they hear only the cavilling about their mistakes and failures, never any appreciation of their high strivings or successes? Why should citizens not feel some responsibility for getting the best service possible out of their employees—which can be done only by building them up, not tearing them down?

It doesn't make sense to pay taxes to hire officials, then take no steps to make the investment pay. Common sense and elementary psychology teach that any human being can be creative and effective in his work only when he has self-confidence and the will to succeed.

Renewal of self-esteem can even vitalize him physically. To repeat once more President Monroe's remark—made when he was asked if the crowds about him in Boston did not tire him—"a little flattery enables one to endure great fatigue."

Many of those who knew James Forrestal have said or written that he died because he believed he had failed. How many persons ever told him he hadn't?

Free Knowledge

Walter Lippmann is to be congratulated for his excellent column of May 23, "Senators, Scientists and Secrecy." Events on the Hill these past few weeks have been alarming. The picture of irresponsible, long-nosed Senators, sniffing about for the Red menace, is not exactly comforting to thoughtful persons. In their haste, these Senators are likely to stumble over their noses with innocent persons getting hurt.

Chairman Lillenthal of the Atomic Energy Commission took a forthright stand. He is to be defended for this. To set a precedent for future hunt is to court disaster. This country believes in the free pursuit of knowledge. Any attempt to restrict this freedom by certain elements in this country must be challenged.

I wonder today how Drew Pearson feels. His constant newspaper articles, repeating, time and again about Mr. Forrestal's sanity, could have been 30 per cent responsible for his suicide. Won't Mr. Pearson ever learn to be a "servant of brotherhood" instead of a hateful man?

such problems as housing and social centers for servicemen.

The President deplored the tendency to pay less attention to the serviceman's personal problems once the war was over.

"You know how this country acts," he said. "When the war ceased there were other things the people wanted to think about."

The serviceman is just as important now, he said.

"Now we're trying to win the peace," he declared, "and we must have a backlog of young men to serve the peace. We're trying to keep these young men and their brothers and cousins from having to go under fire."

The President said that there was something a young man got out of service in the armed forces that he could get nowhere else.

Knows From Experience

"I served in the armed forces and I know what I'm talking about," he said.

The President took the opportunity in his off-the-cuff talk to lash out at those who "accuse us of being materialists because we strive for a high standard of living."

"The fundamental back of a high standard of living," he said, "is living according to the Sermon on the Mount," which in his opinion is the best system of philosophy this world has ever seen."

The President was joined by four other speakers in pleading for "the same treatment" for men in uniform today as they got during the war.

Mrs. Agnes Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, spoke bitterly of conditions she said she had found in her tour of Army camps, naval stations and airfields since the war compared with the situation when the country was at war.

Made Her Ashamed

"I walked out into a social chaos so appalling, inhuman and disgraceful," she asserted, "that I was ashamed of my country."

"If during peacetime," Mrs. Meyer declared, "the armed forces are not going to provide adequate housing for their married career personnel, they might as well fold up and forget about national defense."

Married servicemen, she averred, "are resigning in droves" because of "intolerable" housing conditions.

"If we try to build up a military force by breaking up family life," she said, "we shall soon have neither an army strong enough to defend this country nor a country that is worth defending."

"The armed forces might just as well make up their minds right now that they will never achieve good relations with the civilian population until housing is accepted as the social responsibility of the top military commands and the Congress."

Urges Fight on Three Sides

Mrs. Meyer also urged her hearers to fight the "three evils" of prostitution, gambling and liquor.

"If you condone the existence of organized prostitution," she asserted, "the gambling and liquor rackets also spring up right and left. The whole community then becomes infected with vice, greed and moral corruption."

Undersecretary of Defense Stephen T. Early declared that America must maintain armed forces "adequate to the evils of the day" but should avoid compulsory military service if possible "even in this dark and dangerous time."

He also was critical of servicemen's housing today. "The conditions under which thousands of these devoted soldiers, sailors and airmen live beggar description," he said.

Not Easily Escaped

Arthur J. Altmeyer, Commissioner of Social Security, said the problems of the serviceman cannot be escaped "by announcing our stand against militarism and military training."

Frederick H. Osborn, deputy representative of the United States to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, declared the "basic religious aspect" of the conflict with the Soviet Union made it

Negroes Ask Admission To Florida University

Tallahassee, Fla., May 25 (AP)—Five Negroes today asked the Florida supreme court to order their admission to the state-supported University of Florida.

They were among the six to whom the State Board of Control denied admission May 13. They alleged they had been "arbitrarily refused admission" solely because of their race and color, in violation of the Constitution.

Postlude

Choir Shows Thrilling Sonority

By Paul Hume

From Minnesota to Norway is said to be a very short distance.

Last night a college choir sang in Constitution Hall on their way to the Scandinavian home of their fathers.

Moorhead, Minnesota's Concordia College Choir, directed by Paul Christiansen, gave the program they will sing in almost three dozen concerts in their coming Norwegian tour. They were greeted by an audience of moderate size but true distinction.

The Ambassador from Norway, Wilhelm de Morgenstjerne, spoke of the background of the college. He told the chorus their visit was eagerly awaited in Norway. The Ambassador was introduced by Representative Harold C. Hagen (R., Minn.).

This country has been enriched culturally by the contribution of its Americans of Norwegian descent. The name Christiansen has been associated with the finest standards of choral singing for more than a generation. Last night's director was the younger son, Paul, of the distinguished father, F. Melius.

Family characteristics are immediately apparent, not only in the looks of the older and younger conductors, but in the kind of singing they produce. Paul Christiansen's choir last night had absolute fidelity to pitch, and phenomenal precision in vocal mechanics for which the St. Olaf Choir, founded by the senior leader, is known.

Their singing of Bach, Willan and Palestrina was marked with a thrilling sonority and perfect balance. It is natural that they should also possess the same kind of tone as their illustrious singing relatives. Sopranos produce a woody, unresonant tone, and enunciation is allowed to slide in favor of the continuous tone.

Their assets so far outweigh their liabilities, which are matters of opinion, that the choir will carry a splendid message from this country to Norway. Their program, including some excellent music by Americans Randall Thompson and members of the Christiansen family, is one of the finest in seasons. Not the least of the thrills of the evening was the singing of the two national anthems following intermission.

appropriate that religious leaders were attending the conference "to discuss how best our young citizens ought to be made to understand why they are in the armed forces."

Senators Juggle 'Hot Potato' Bill as Vivisection Battle Ends

Johns Hopkins Hospital, who said Tuesday that he had developed the "blue baby" operation through dog experimentation.

Citing a British medical journal, she said a similar operation was perfected by a London doctor without animal vivisection.

Dr. Blalock had insisted to the committee that he was the pioneer in this field in previous discussions of the British origin claim.

Testimony offered and questions asked by committee members indicated that the bill, if favorably reported, would be modified to: (1) protect pets, as distinguished from "strays," from release to medical laboratories; (2) extend the period of 48 hours before which an unclaimed dog may be given to experimentation; (3) demand prior advertisement of lost dogs; and (4) permit humane societies to inspect research laboratories at will.

Subcommittee Chairman Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) told reporters that it would be "some time" before the long hearing record could be compiled, digested and acted upon. "I must say I learned plenty from these two days," she said.

The testimony was suspended just before noon yesterday when David Darrin, who has offices in the Bond Building, said: "Let us devote one minute to silent nonsectarian prayer while we search our conscience. Is this request in order?"

"Without objection, request is granted," said Senator Smith.

Earlier, Poundmaster, Frank Marks came under attack from Dr. Eugene F. Mullin, a local veterinarian. In a sworn affidavit, Mullin said dogs at the pound are dragged to the death chamber and dropped into a 5-foot pit. "The writhing, frightened mass of dogs are gassed for 20 minutes. . . dogs are better cared for and more mercifully treated in hospitals, laboratories and schools than they are in the antivivisectionist-defended pound," Mullin told the committee.

Marks, stoutly backed by local humane societies, denied the cruelty charges.

The poundmaster did not take a position on the pending bill, but several humane and animal rescue league spokesmen made two points—that they be authorized to operate the pound and that medical institutions raise their own dogs for experimental work.

To the suggestion that hospitals establish dog farms, Dr. Fishback commented: "The idea is fine, but who would pay for it. It is not economical. Why don't you raise chickens for eggs instead of buying them at the store. It's just too costly. Why waste the strays in the pound."

Another vivisection supporter, Dr. William F. Hewitt of Howard University Medical School, filed a list of 20 doctors who have subjected themselves to experimentation or died as medical "guinea pigs." "Dogs are not carrying the entire load in this field," he testified.

Near the close of the hearing, Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan of the Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association, brought some stony glares and muffled comment when she stood up to endorse the bill.

Opponents took varied courses in opposing the proposal.

Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, speaking for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said District residents should decide what should be done about lost pets. "The Association, brought some stony glares and muffled comment when she stood up to endorse the bill."

the people may express themselves on the question," she said.

Private Firms In D. C. Show Gain in Jobs

By S. Oliver Goodman

Private employment in Washington appears to be more than holding its own this year. This was indicated yesterday in a survey by The Washington Post of the city's 11 biggest non-governmental enterprises. The group reported combined total employment of 36,845 persons as of May 1, 1949, compared with 36,464 in June, 1948.

The local employment figures are a sharp contrast with reports from other large cities, where job totals in private industry are shrinking. The 11 largest private firms in this city reported their employment totals as follows:

Company	May 1, 1949	June 1, 1948
C. & P. Telephone	6,200	6,200
Capital Transit	5,200	4,900
Ward & Lohr	4,600	4,600
Wing Terminal	4,300	4,300
The Hecht Co.	3,500	3,200
Potomac Electric	2,600	2,579
Safeway Stores	2,400	2,400
Pharmacia	2,200	2,200
Govt. Services, Inc.	2,100	2,100
Wash. Gas Light	1,800	1,800
Lansburgh's	1,600	1,590

There are some more figures to chew on. The D. C. Unemployment Compensation Board reports that in the week ended May 21 there were 3,424 checks issued to jobless persons. This compared with 2,640 checks in the comparable 1948 week and 3,561 in the same 1947 period.

The UCB also reports that jobless checks were paid to 18,622 persons in the week ended May 21, compared with 16,444 in the same 1948 week and 4,322 in the like 1947 week.

It would take an alarmist with very dark glasses to see anything exceptionally gloomy about that set of UCB figures.

RIGHTS EXPIRE: The warrants issued by Potomac Electric Power Co., entitling stockholders to subscribe to an additional 592,250 shares of common stock at $12.50 a share, expired at 3 p. m. yesterday. Transfer agents burned a good deal of their clients' products last night in counting up the subscription. One informed quarter "necessitated" that more than 50 per cent of the rights were exercised.

HEADS FIDUCIARIES: Edward J. Dent, Jr., was elected chairman of the Fiduciaries Section of the District Bankers Association at a dinner meeting last night at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Dent is an assistant trust officer of the National M. E. Metropolitan new section officers are: Herman G. Leuten of National Savings & Trust Co., vice chairman; Henry H. Lefferts of Washington Loan & Trust Co., secretary-treasurer; W. B. C. Dieter of Union Trust Co. was elected to the council and other council members were re-elected. Bruce Prantz of American Security & Trust, retiring section chairman, became ex-officio council member. Principal speaker was Judge Bolitha J. Laws of the United States District Court.

DIVIDENDS: Liberty National Bank declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $4 a share on capital stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 22. President W. T. Van Doren reported yesterday. . . National Mortgage & Investment Corp., Washington, has declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on account of accumulated dividends on preferred stock, payable June 15 to stock of record June 1. This is the second 30-cent dividend during the fiscal year.

ODD LOTS: Ohio's State Securities Division has refused to register a proposed five-million-dollar stock issue of the Keller Motors Corp. of Huntsville, Ala., declaring the share price of $1 was "grossly inflated." . . . Stockholders of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. will vote on a capital reorganization plan at a special meeting June 29. . . . Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week posted the sharpest advance since mid-February, climbing to $5.74 from $5.66 a week ago. . . . Clarence Francis, chairman of General Foods Corp., has been named chairman of Treasury's Industrial Advisory Committee to guide industry's payroll savings effort during the Opportunity Savings Bond Drive.

PARLEY STARTS: The vanguard of an expected 600 delegates to the Fourteenth Eastern regional conference of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers arrived here yesterday. Registration was at the Mayflower where business sessions will be held through Saturday. . . . Robert H. Lacey, president of the D. C. Bankers Association, will give the welcoming address this morning at the opening of formal sessions.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: President Bruce Baird today marks his 30th year with the National Savings & Trust Co. He was elected to president and a director in 1940. . . . Richard A. Hoese, formerly of the Gunther Brewing Co., has become associated with the G. B. Macke Corp. of Washington as a sales representative. . . . Samuel J. Solomon, formerly managing director of the Washington National Airport, has been re-elected to the board of TACA Airways, S. A., and Francis H. Inge of Mobile, Ala., was named president. . . . Richard H. Sinclair of the American Building Association has been appointed golf chairman for the annual D. C. Building and Loan League outing on June 13.

Stranger Pays Costs, Frees Jailed Debtor

LAFF-A-DAY

"Certainly an unsociable fellow!"

Urged to Tell Public of Job

Weights and measures officials yesterday were urged to get out and tell the public about their job.

In a paper read at the second day's session of the thirty-fourth National Conference on Weights and Measures, Dr. E. V. Moore, assistant commissioner of New York State's Department of Agriculture and Markets, said the public was getting a warped view of weights and measures work.

"The press usually plays up the violations," he said, but seldom mentions preventive, everyday services and work in maintaining industrial standards performed by weights and measures men.

A suggested program for education of weights and measures officials was read by J. T. Kennedy, director of the D. C. Department of Weights, Measures and Markets, and chairman of the conference committee on education.

R. D. Thompson, supervisor of the weights and measures section of the Virginia department of agriculture, presented a movie being used in Virginia's education program.

Rutland, Vt., May 25 (U.P.).—Ralph J. Fugatt, 29, of Springfield, Mass., one of three war veterans jailed indefinitely under an old Vermont debtor law, was freed as a result of the generosity of a "total stranger," he disclosed tonight.

Fugatt said a man identified only as William Sanders of Memphis, Tenn., a stranger to him, had sent money to cover the entire judgment levied against him as well as court and jail costs.

Fugatt wasn't even sure of the amount of money that had been sent to secure his freedom. He said it had been wired to a Brattleboro bank and was more than enough to cover the $2189 judgment against him as well as court costs of $56 and jail board of $1.25 a day.

In Memphis, Sanders, a 38-year-old cotton broker who served with the Red Cross in India during the war, said he sent money to get a total stranger out of a Vermont debtors' prison because he felt he "got a bad deal."

"It's not generosity," the father of three young children said. "It's just a loan. That's all, nothing more."

Women Get Jury Right

Tallahassee, Fla., May 25 (A.P.).—A legislative measure giving women the right to sit on juries in Florida was enacted into law today without the approval of Governor Warren. The law becomes effective August 1. Women may sit as jurors at all trials except those dealing with condemnation cases.

Sugar Packages Argue Against Nationalization

London, May 25 (A.P.).—The Tate & Lyle Sugar Co., listed for possible state ownership under the Labor government's nationalization program, plans to take its case to the housewives.

A company spokesman said today "we will present our case against nationalization," in paragraphs printed on the two million packages of sugar which are sold daily to British housewives.

Discrimination Sells Divorce Suits Quashed

Among Park Police Banned

A divorce suit against Mrs. Leslie Sells, 47, of 3426 Reservoir rd., charging adultery, was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts in District Court.

At the same time the jurist dismissed a suit brought by Mrs. Sells against her husband, Lieut. Comdr. Lister Sells, 42, of 2001 16th st. n.w., charging cruelty.

Under the ruling Mrs. Sells will retain custody of the couple's 7-year-old son, Ludington and receive $75 per month upkeep for the child. Her husband also was instructed to pay $1,000 of her lawyers fees.

In his ruling, Judge Letts held that neither side had proved its contentions.

'Green Promise' Honestly Rustic

By Richard L. Coe

BEING A CITY BOY whose acquaintance with the good earth is limited to mowing a small strip of lawn, I am in open awe of farm people. I can imagine their problems but I haven't the faintest clue how to grapple with them.

So a picture like Keith's "The Green Promise," which is about the 4-H Clubs, only sets me to admiring bucolic youth and thinking how frivolously my life has been spent.

"The Green Promise" is not a particularly good picture; its situations are too stock and its leading players tend toward familiar thesping. But there is an honest simplicity in it and its respect for farm people fits into my own ideas.

For seen from a crowded, expensive city in a complex, hungry world, the people who give us our daily bread are so much more important to our total scene than a harried city dweller credits. That there is such a thing as the 4-H Clubs—enrollment of over two million—to keep the young folks happy down on the farm has always struck me as a wonderful idea. I had a college roommate who'd won a 4-H prize for his best steer, and I've always felt that no matter how well he's done in the razzle-dazzle news-magazine world, he's never been quite so proud and happy as the shining lad with the blue ribbon I once saw in a newspaper clipping.

So "The Green Promise" and its tribute to 4-H work has only to mention 4-H to win my respect. The story tells of a widowed farmer whose eldest daughter looks after his other three children while he sticks to old-school farming. When she meets a scientific farmer, who tells her of 4-H and its up-to-date farm projects, Father William Brennan behaves the way old-hat farmers traditionally do.

It takes an accident to Dad to give Daughter Marguerite Chapman the chance to try 4-H methods on their farm. When a storm washes out the farm through the lack of timber which Dad has unwisely cut down, it takes the 4-H boys and girls to reclaim the fields.

As you can see, the story is obvious, but somehow the idea of 4-H has seeped healthily through the picture. The film was produced by the way, by Glenn McCarthy, that fabulous Texas oil tycoon. It's sincerely played as Hollywood sincerity goes. The inevitable "Romantic Angle," without which no Hollywood attempt is complete, is unfortunately in evidence.

ers fit into its three-depth nation (whew!) area... The Trans-Lux promises a "sneak preview" tonight at 9... Tomorrow night at 8, Washington's three Film Councils unite for a program of "Recreation Roundup" films in the Interior Department Auditorium as part of Park and Recreation Week... The K-B Theater—Apex, Atlas, MacArthur, Naylor and Senator—rush word that, effective Sunday, air-conditioning will be at work in all houses... Carlo Buti, the Italian crooner, arrives today for his special variety performance Friday night at the Uline Arena... "The Fall of the House of Usher," Jean Epstein's film from the Poe classic, will share Friday night's bill with "Rien Que Les Heures" at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 New York ave.

reason to boast that its cast for "The Mrs. Carrills," to be given Friday and Saturday nights at the Armstrong High auditorium, will be the finest in the group's 16 years... Carolyn Stewart, a member of Equity and a veteran of Broadway's "Jeb," has the Elisabeth Bergner role, with James Butcher, Jr., of the Howard University drama staff, as the convining husband... The Armstrong stage this year replaces the Theatrical former home, the Howard Theater, unavailable at this particular time... Mrs. Isadore Miles, a teacher of English at Armstrong, is directing.

GOP Leaders Lay Plans to Force 2-Billion Slash

Republican Senate leaders agreed yesterday to continue their drive to reduce President Truman's spending estimates with a veto-proof rider designed to save about two billion dollars.

Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) reported this was decided at a closed session of the Senate GOP policy committee.

"We'll support any reasonable move for economy and maybe some that seem unreasonable," Taft said.

So far, Senate Republicans, with some Democratic support, have failed in four successive attempts to whittle 5 per cent out of four big annual appropriations.

These economy efforts on individual bills will continue, Taft said, and later an attempt will be made to attach an economy rider (amendment) to one of the annual appropriations.

Soviet Renews Demand For Atom Controls

Lake Success, N. Y., May 25 (U.P.)—Russia renewed her demand today that the United Nations immediately draft twin treaties to outlaw the atomic bomb and establish strict world control of nuclear energy.

The proposal, substantially the same as a Soviet atomic plan that has been brought before the U. N. four times in six months, was sent to a working committee of the world organization's atomic energy commission.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Former Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, in discussing James V. Forrestal, said that on the day he left the Treasury Forrestal told him: "Henry, you got out at the top of the market."... The American Federation of Labor's three delegates to the new World Federation of Free Trade Unions will be William Green, Matthew Woll and David Dubinsky... There is a trust fund at the Bankers Trust, set up by a civic-minded group, to augment the incomes of those men who make financial sacrifices in accepting Government posts. John McCloy, who has just made such a sacrifice in taking the Berlin job, probably will be a beneficiary of this trust fund.

Lindsay & Crouse and Rodgers & Hammerstein, the richest partnerships in show business, are entering a combine which will buy a television station... Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., fell 30,000 short in his own prediction of victory in the congressional race. His private prediction was that he would win by only 10,000 votes... Henry J. Kaiser's new speedboat, which Guy Lombardo will ride next month in an attempt to break Sir Malcolm Campbell's record, hit over 100-m.p.h. in a test-run last week.

Robert E. Sherwood's next writing assignment may be a screen dramatization of the life of Thomas Paine... John O'Hara, the novelist, will leave New York this fall and take up permanent residence in Princeton... A former SHAEF correspondent saw General Eisenhower again in Washington, and they started reminiscing about the many nice people they had met overseas during the war. Eisenhower said: "Wouldn't you like the war—without the shooting?"

Tyrone Power, now making "The Black Rose" in French Morocco, met General LeBlanc and asked him if there are any Americans in the French Foreign Legion. "Only a few," shrugged General LeBlanc, mostly poets... Alexandra Mayes, the 7-year-old daughter of magazine editor Herbert Mayes, phoned her classmate, Joe DiMaggio, Jr., whose mother said: "Sorry, but Joe DiMaggio can't come to the telephone until he finishes his cereal."

Perversion of Loyalty Program to Ruin Him Is Charged by James

A serious charge that the employe loyalty program had been perverted in an attempt to ruin him was made yesterday by Roy E. James, dismissed Army civilian employe.

A career civil service employe, James resigned his Interior job last fall to run unsuccessfully on the GOP ticket against Representative Francis Walter (D., Pa.). In January he was reinstated in an Army job. In testimony before a Senate Civil Service Subcommittee, James blamed his former political opponent for his troubles. Walter denies the charge.

"A very clear effort," James said, "was made to pervert the loyalty program to get me. I believe in the loyalty program and I have supported it but it must be administered by patriots and conscientious men and it must not be used by some persons for their own political advantage."

James added that the underhanded use of the loyalty program to deliberately and purposely drive him from the Federal service was of far greater concern to him than being disqualified in his Army job. "If it can happen to me," he said, "it can happen to hundreds of other Federal employes who don't happen to agree with a politician in an influential position."

In fact, there are high-placed reports that three other persons with whom James was associated—one who refused to be pressured into firing James—all have had loyalty charges made against them. The Senate subcommittee may go into this angle at a later hearing. Witnesses testified that James, an outspoken anti-Communist, had been found to be loyal in a check made in 1947 and in another conducted this year. Lawson Moyer, civil service's executive director, said this year's check was routine; that employes who resign and re-enter Federal service are subject to a loyalty inquiry.

But James said a second "super-duper" loyalty check on him was made by the Army in March. Moyer said he had no knowledge of it. James said that Assistant Army Secretary Tracy S. Voorhees, hinted to him that Walter suggested to him that James' loyalty check was routine. However, Malcolm McComb, a Voorhees assistant, testified that the Assistant Secretary told him that Walter had no hand in the new inquiry.

Army witnesses were agreed that James was not only qualified but they praised his work as an $8500-a-year programming specialist. One said that James had been given a "raw deal."

Another Army witness testified that civil service had sent a special examiner to the department to check on James' qualifications for his job, an action he described as rare and unusual. He made the commission look even worse when he said that no such post-audit check had been made in the qualifications of James' five co-workers.

The commission got into the case when Walter phoned Commissioner Frances Perkins to suggest a check on James' qualifications. It made the check with alacrity. However, Moyer, the commission's executive officer, insisted that political pressure had nothing whatever to do with its decision to disqualify James. He said the ruling was routine. He recalled that the commission had ignored an earlier protest by Walter because of a promotion James had been given at Interior.

James is appealing to Civil Service Board of Review. An Army official said it hadn't been determined whether to reassign James to another job. The Senate subcommittee is headed by Langer (R., N. Dak.). Chairman Johnston (D., S. C.) attended yesterday's hearing. Langer said no decision would be made until the hearing was printed and the third member, McKellar (D., Tenn.) had read it.

VETERANS: Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) yesterday put in a bill to give disabled veterans greater job security. His measure would give what amount to absolute job preference to permanent status veterans who had good or better efficiency ratings and who were rated 60 per cent disabled by the Veterans Administration or who received a special award because of their disabilities. The bill would be retroactive to May 1.

2 Navy Men Die in Crash Of Surplus War Plane

Two-Seater Craft Smashed to Bits Pancaking on Hill Near Friendly, Md.

Two Navy enlisted men were killed last night in the crash of a single-engine "surplus" plane about four miles from Andrews Air Force Base at 6:30 p. m.

At Anacostia Naval Air Station, the occupants were identified as: Richard D. Howe, 25, an aviation machinist's mate second class, attached to the air station.

Harry V. Tazul, whose age and rating were not available, but who also was an enlisted man at the air station.

The plane, a P-13 primary trainer, a two-seater, used during World War II for training, crashed on the farm of Troy Thorne, circulation area manager of The Washington Post, on Allentown rd. near Friendly, Md.

The plane, it was announced by naval officials, had taken off from Hyde Field at Clinton, Md., 15 minutes before the crash.

Ollie Dodson, who also lives near Friendly, saw the plane pass over his home as he was finishing dinner. Almost immediately, he said, he heard the engine cut off and, then, the sound of an "explosion or crash." The plane was out of sight when the engine cut off.

However, another observer said the plane appeared to stall, then pancaked into a small hill in the center of a clearing in a wooded area.

Both bodies were badly mutilated. The plane did not burn, as was first reported, but was almost completely smashed to bits by the impact.

Both bodies were badly mutilated. The head of one man had been almost completely severed. Both were wearing regulation Navy blue-denim shirts, dungarees and black shoes. A white sailor's hat was among the wreckage.

According to officials at Anacostia, Howe was owner of the surplus sold plane and was piloting it when it took off. Crash crews from Andrews Air Force Base, the Fire Department and rescue squad from Oxon Hill and Prince Georges County police went to the scene. Both men were pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James E. Boyd, county medical examiner.

Phone Date Leads Youth Into Police Net

A 19-year-old youth with amorous ambitions yesterday stumbled into a trap set by two unromantic detectives and an angered husband.

Police said William Wallace Poague first got Mrs. Evelyn S. Thompson, 31-year-old housewife, of 3500 A st. se., on the telephone on a wrong number call.

He said he liked her voice, so he called back Monday and again yesterday asking for a date and making improper suggestions, police added. Mrs. Poague hung up twice on her caller, then her husband, Paul, suggested she lure him on so a trap could be set.

So when Mrs. Thompson's caller rang her again, she agreed to a date at 3 p. m. yesterday. "Leave the door open," he advised, "I'll be up after I stop at the drug store for some liquor and things."

The caller was 30 minutes early, but even so husband Thompson and two vice squad detectives were waiting quietly in the bedroom. Mrs. Thompson admitted the youth and he immediately threw his arms around her and tried to kiss her.

The detectives then stepped from the bedroom and arrested Poague. "He was a little surprised," Mrs. Thompson said later.

Because he had grabbed Mrs. Thompson, Poague was charged with assault. He was released in $500 bond and ordered to appear in Municipal Court today. Poague is a construction engineer's helper and lives at 1334 B st. se.

Robert Burrows Renamed Head of Burroughs Group

Robert T. Burrows was reelected president of the Burroughs Citizens Association last night.

Also reelected were Mrs. Mae Chipman, vice president in charge of athletics; Frank Suzanna, treasurer, and Mrs. Henry A. Bartlett and Bernard Dodder, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Others chosen were Miss Doris Meade, secretary; Miss Caroline Vinci, assistant secretary, and Mr. Heaps, vice president in charge of memberships.

Among resolutions adopted was one requesting the Commissioners to change the traffic light controls at Rhode Island and Mills aves. ne., where three persons have been killed in recent years, one last week.

Area Building Workers Reported Set to Strike Tuesday or Wednesday

Twenty thousand union building mechanics and laborers face a work layoff in the Washington area if the AFL carpenters walk out next week, the Master Builders Association announced yesterday.

The association said it had a report the union carpenters, who want an increase in their present pay rate of $2.40 an hour, will strike Tuesday or Wednesday.

"Union officials have refused to comment except to admit the carpenters voted last Saturday night to authorize a walkout."

The Master Builders Association and the Concrete Contractors Council held a special meeting of its members Tuesday, it was learned yesterday, and decided to stand fast on their offer to renew present wage schedules in a new work contract with the carpenters, but to give no wage increase.

The carpenters first asked for 22½ cents more an hour, later offered to accept 10 cents more. The builders-carpenters' contract expired April 30, but carpenters have thus far remained at their jobs.

The two employers' groups, representing the greater majority of general contractors and subcontractors employing union help, issued a statement yesterday on their wage stand.

The association and council are opposed to increasing wages, the statement said, "at a time when all other commodities and services are reducing prices and stabilizing wages, and the cost of living is declining."

Randolph C. Wyant, executive secretary of the Master Builders, said the statement also represents the sentiment of a large group of union builders not affiliated with the association.

The builders said that if the 3000 union carpenters struck, as planned, then the bulk of construction, commercial and residential alike, would quickly come to a halt in metropolitan Washington, throwing the other mechanics, such as plumbers and electricians, as well as union laborers out of work.

The carpenters, the statement explained, are the "key factor in the progress of any construction job."

Contract talks between the builders and the AFL carpenters have been at a standstill for two weeks.

Man, 36, Killed in Fall From 2d-Story Window

Leonard H. Merriweather, 36, fell to his death last night from a second-story window of his home, 2311 18th st. nw.

According to police he struck his head and shoulders on the sidewalk and was killed instantly. He was pronounced dead at the scene by a staff doctor from Freedmen's Hospital.

His wife, Mrs. E. C. Cowher, reported to Mount Rainier police that after he failed to hear from his wife he went to New Orleans, but could not find her and feared foul play.

Group Asks $35,000 Grant To Hospital From Alexandria

The citizens committee named to determine how much financial aid Alexandria Hospital should receive from the city yesterday recommended $35,000 as a starter.

This and other suggestions were contained in a preliminary report released yesterday by the five-man committee created last fall when the hospital pleaded impending bankruptcy and asked the city for a $60,000 grant.

The city at that time made an emergency grant to the hospital of $20,000.

A final report presenting a formula for the city's financial responsibility for "medically indigent cases"—persons too poor to pay hospital bills, but not poor enough to be welfare cases—will be ready in about six months, the committee said.

Besides the immediate grant of $35,000 to help offset an operating deficit that last year reached $86,000, the committee recommended:

1. That membership on the hospital's board of directors be increased from 7 to 21 and that interested citizens of Alexandria and adjoining counties be made eligible to serve as directors.

2. That the hospital's directors acquaint adjoining county superintendents with their responsibilities for medically indigent residents of their respective counties.

3. That the Alexandria City Council maintain a citizens committee to make an annual report on the city's responsibility to the hospital for medically indigent charity cases.

The report also pointed out, without making specific recommendations, that the hospital should "charge enough from regular patients to insure a profit" for replacements and new facilities and that the hospital administrator should acquaint "all citizens and employers with the advantages of proper hospitalization insurance."

The City Council's Hospital Committee met yesterday afternoon, considered the preliminary report, but could not agree on a recommendation to the full council. Next regular meeting of the City Council is June 14.

Mt. Rainier Wife Missing After Trip

Police of 14 States yesterday, Hyattsville station of Prince Georges County police, sent a lookout on the teletype system yesterday asking New Orleans and Tuscaloosa, Ala., police to pay special attention.

The woman is 5-foot 7 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

Her husband, E. C. Cowher, reported to Mount Rainier police that after he failed to hear from his wife he went to New Orleans, but could not find her and feared foul play.

Stable Groom Convicted in Case of Girl, 15

Horse Show Rider 7 Months Pregnant; Sentence Deferred

A 40-year-old stable groom was found guilty yesterday on two counts of carnal knowledge with a 15-year-old horse show rider, now seven months pregnant.

Lancelot Russell, of 1428 Rock Creek Ford rd. nw., faces a maximum sentence of 20 to 60 years in jail, 10 to 30 years on each count.

A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated less than two hours in District Court yesterday. They did not prescribe the death penalty, which the Government asked. No date for sentencing was set by Judge Edward M. Curran.

In a signed statement, which highlighted the Government's case, the Negro groom said he had had sexual relations with the blue-eyed girl "once or twice a week" since the summer of 1948. He was charged with one offense in October, 1948, and one in March, 1949.

Russell's attorney objected to introduction of the statement, and charged that it had been signed only after his client was threatened. Arresting officers denied the threat.

During the trial, the young girl took the stand in tears, and told of having sexual relations with Russell on many occasions "since she was 14."

She first met Russell at his mother's stables at the Rock Creek Ford rd. address. She wanted to ride in shows for him.

Assistant United States attorney characterized the girl as "more interested in her riding than her reputation" in asking the jury to stop similar crimes by giving Russell the death penalty.

Fall From Car Fatal to Girl, 2, Near Alexandria

A 2-year-old girl was injured fatally yesterday when she fell from a moving automobile driven by her father.

The child, Mary Katherine Koestline, died at 9:05 last night in Bethesda Naval Hospital where she was transferred from Alexandria Hospital. Her skull was fractured.

She was the daughter of M/Serg. William C. Koestline, USMC, and Mrs. Koestline of 422 Edgemoor dr., Jefferson Manor, Fairfax County, Va.

Alexandria police said the child fell from the right-rear door of the car on Mount Vernon Boulevard about a half mile north of Alexandria at about 11 a. m. Another child was in the back seat while Sergeant Koestline and his wife were in the front, police said.

Hearing Today
Sen. Smith Aims to End Court Secrecy

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) intends to do something about reducing the secrecy surrounding juvenile court case handling here.

The Senator plans to start in today at 10 a. m. when she will preside over a Senate District subcommittee hearing on a bill to provide for two permanent judges on the juvenile bench after the expiration of Judge Fay L. Bentley's term in 1952.

As a first step, Senator Smith has drafted an amendment to the pending two-judge bill which would require that juvenile court case statistics be open to public inspection.

Names Confidential
Present law limits examination of court records only to the child's parents, attorney or guardian.

The amendment, which Senator Smith admits is in preliminary form, states that "statistics of the court shall be made available to the public at all times containing information regarding juvenile offenses and related problems, including court action on various juvenile offenses; provided names, addresses and individual records of the children shall remain confidential."

Will Dig Into Delinquency
Senator Smith has said that she will go into all the broad issues of juvenile delinquency locally and how the court is presently handling it when she questions witnesses on the pending judgeship legislation.

The bill, sponsored by the District Bar Association, also increases the term of juvenile court judges from 6 to 10 years and requires that only members of the District Bar for five years shall be eligible for the juvenile bench.

Spokesmen for the commission, District Bar Association and the Women's Bar Association said court personnel are expected to testify today.

Falls Church Trench Cavein Injures Two

A workman was injured when he fell into a trench cavein near Falls Church, Va., last night and another was hurt while working to extricate him.

Jesse King, of Portsmouth, Va., suffered a possible broken leg when the sides of a 12-foot trench in which he was laying a water main gave way. A second slide occurring while rescuers were digging King out, trapped Percy Ephraim, of Newport News, Va., injuring his back and shoulder.

Both were taken to Arlington Hospital.

The accident occurred about 8 p. m. as a construction crew of the A. Stanley Mundy Co. of Woodbridge, N. J., was working on the new Falls Church water main at Graham rd. and Quincy ave., adjoining Tyler Park subdivision.

A crew of eight men worked for an hour and ten minutes to extricate King as spotlights on scout cars of Virginia State, Fairfax County and Falls Church police illuminated the scene.

Settlement Denied In Suit Over McMahon Estate

Lewis Shapiro, attorney for Mrs. Virginia McMahon, beneficiary of the bulk of the $100,000 estate left by Richard J. McMahon, a butcher, who died last year, yesterday declared that there had been no settlement with Mrs. Theresa McMahon, former wife of McMahon.

A caveat filed by attorneys in behalf of Mrs. Theresa McMahon in District Court preliminary to contesting the will was withdrawn Tuesday. At that time Attorney Nathan Rubey, attorney for Mrs. McMahon, was understood to say the caveat had been withdrawn because a "settlement" had been arrived at. He refused to divulge the extent of the settlement and referred questioners to Mrs. McMahon.

Yesterday Rubey denied he had said a "settlement" had been reached and asserted he had merely said the case was "settled."

Year's Sentence Faced In Wine Fight Death

Joseph Suber, 454 E st. sw., faces a possible one-year sentence today for the death of John Madden, 37, of 613 6th st. nw. Madden died following a fight with Suber over a 29-cent bottle of wine on March 28.

Suber, tried for manslaughter, was convicted only of simple assault by a District Court jury before Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Madden died of a cerebral hemorrhage two days after the fracas in which he was punched by Suber. It was brought out during the trial.

Court Authorizes Removal of Phones From Restaurants In Downtown Area

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Government won two victories in District Court yesterday in its efforts to remove more than 300 telephones it claims are being used to violate gambling laws.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff authorized removal of one telephone at the Old Mill Cafe, 13 H st. nw., and another at the American Restaurant, 407 9th st. nw.

Owners of both establishments had sought injunctions against United States Attorney George Morris Fay and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., restraining them from removing the telephones.

In the case of the Old Mill Cafe, attorneys for its owner, Elsie M. Corridon, 4402 9th st. nw., withdrew her motion for a preliminary injunction in a surprise move just before the scheduled hearing.

Concerning the cafe telephone, a public booth, Judge Holtzoff told Edmund L. Jones, C. & P. attorney, "I think you are now under a duty to proceed and withdraw service" from the cafe.

Removal of the American Restaurant telephone was contested for one hour. Four Government affidavits, adopted by the telephone company, charged that on five occasions during December and January undercover agents had witnessed gambling activity in the restaurant and had seen the telephone used in connection with this activity.

Attorneys for the Strand Restaurant, Inc., owner of the American Restaurant, filed five answering affidavits, categorically denying five employees knew the telephone in question had been used to violate gambling laws.

Judge Holtzoff said he "could hardly credit the denial of the plaintiff" and inferred "tacit consent" to illegal use of the telephone.

He said the Government had proved by a preponderance of the evidence that "the telephone was used for gambling by employees and that the evidence is corroborated by further evidence that gambling activities were conducted in the restaurant." He noted that the defense had filed no denial from one of the restaurant employees charged with using the telephone for gambling.

Jury to Get Safe Robbery Case Today

The case of the $60,000 safe robbery from the home of former Detective Sgt. Richard H. Beckley will be placed in the hands of a District Court jury today after final summation by defense and Government counsel.

Charged with the robbery last January 22 are Stance James, 29, of 1332 9th st. nw.; his brother, Oliver James, 24, of 1600 A st. se.; and Louis H. Singleton, 40, of 910 Westminister st. se.

In final arguments yesterday, Curtis Mitchell, representing Oliver James, told the jury "when Beckley first reported the theft he said he saw two men. But after he spoke with Detective Sgt. Irving Lubore, we get three..."

Attorney James J. Laughlin, Singleton's attorney, recalled to the jury testimony that Beckley had deposited $45,000 in a bank in 1918 when he was a member of the Police Department.

"If you can make that kind of money as an officer in one year—it must be a profitable occupation and we are all in the wrong business," Laughlin exclaimed.

Henry L. Johnson, representing Stance James, asked why the prosecution had been unable to produce any evidence to corroborate Beckley's allegation that he lost about $60,000 and $1800 in jewelry.

BABY-WALKERS—Some 300 babies did all the things babies are expected to do yesterday at the Red Cross Baby Festival, but the fathers stole the show. In addition to setting new records for putting on tri-cornered pants, the males rocked the babies and sang to the tune of "Sleep Kentucky Babe"—a little ditty called, "Sleep My Red Cross Babe." These fathers, members of the Telephone Company Glee Club, holding borrowed babies, are (from left), Loran Norris, Millard Beall, Jack Bowie and Jack Chase.

Hair Dressers Plan Short Cuts for Fall

If you think milady's hair looks short now, just wait till you see it next fall.

"It's going to be shorter than short," Miss Ethel Gilchrist, president of the Washington Hair Dressers and Cosmetologists Association predicted yesterday.

Trend Denounced

Druggists Hit Medicine Sale By Grocers

Washington area druggists, well versed in multi-merchandising, yesterday protested invasion of their own business by grocers selling patent medicines.

The postwar trend, which started on the West Coast, has gradually spread eastward and now "threatens" Washington druggists, said Harold C. Kinner, president of the D. C. Pharmaceutical Association. He spoke here yesterday in afternoon session of the ninety-seventh annual consecutive gathering of the association, at Hotel Shoreham.

Kinner listed "competition of nondrug outlets for national scope (chain stores)" as one of the four major problems of the profession. The others were socialized medicine, further taxation and "bureaucratic" regulations.

"There has been a growing tendency since the war for nondrug merchants to take on drugs (patent, or prepared medicines) as an attractive sideline. Only recently has this been causing any concern in Washington."

He told how one, unidentified druggist here retaliated against a neighbor grocer by stocking his drugstore "so full of canned goods, sugar and potatoes the customer could scarcely see medicinal wares."

Without recommending that other pharmacists follow the lead, he did advocate that druggists educate themselves and the public that "the drugstore is the place to buy drugs."

Concerning the proposed national compulsory health insurance, Kinner declared: "Government - controlled medicine can give nothing that private enterprise cannot - except, perhaps, a few thousand jobs to bureaucrats."

Fairfax Scout Picnic

Fairfax County Boy Scouts will hold a field day and picnic Saturday at Fort Belvoir. A program of athletic events and games will start at 2 p. m. followed by a picnic supper, campfire skits and singing.

"Very feminine, though," she hastened to add. "No shingles, but soft little wispy curls on the nape of the neck, short bangs, and high feathery things on the side—very soft, and very flattering."

There's plenty of variety in the short cut, says Miss Gilchrist. At least 15 different kinds were cooked up as a starter by her association when it met here last week with the Hair Fashion Council of America.

Youth Held Under Bond

A 19-year-old youth yesterday was held in $1000 bond for the grand jury charged with beating and robbing Paul E. Walls, 46, of 1015 L st., two weeks ago. Bond was set by Municipal Judge Ellen K. Reedy.

The youth, Vincent E. Soper of 461 H st. n.w., and a juvenile companion, who faces Juvenile Court action, were accused by Walls of luring him into an alley in the rear of the Gospel Mission, 819 5th st. n.w., on pretext of getting him a driver.

Road Job Completed

A $103,000 road straightening and widening project by the District Highway Department on 4th st., between Harvard and College sts. n.w., will be completed Friday and opened to vehicle traffic. The project, started March 22, is near McMillan Reservoir.

Cafe Furnishings Sold

Furnishings of Brownie's Restaurant, 501 12th st. n.w., were sold at auction yesterday to Howard Michelson, 938 E st. n.w., for $10,000.

Collector of Taxes Guy W. Pearson waived his right to the sale in favor of the holders of a $21,800 chattel mortgage on the furnishings, which took priority. The restaurant was padlocked two weeks ago by Pearson for nonpayment of $1508 in personal property taxes. Michelson said he bid on behalf of an undisclosed party.

Celler Says U. S. Should Set Example in Taking in DP's

European displaced-persons camps may remain in existence forever if the United States doesn't accept its fair share of the refugees, Representative Emmanuel Celler (D, N. Y.) said last night.

United States reluctance in absorbing DP's will discourage other nations from taking in the numbers they had originally planned to take, Celler said.

Celler spoke at a meeting of the Washington chapter of the American Association of University Women at the AAUW building, 1515 New Hampshire ave. n.w. His talk was in reply to an attack on proposed "liberalization" of the Displaced Persons Act made at a previous AAUW meeting by Representative Ed Gossett (D, Tex.).

Citing State Department statistics, Celler said countries smaller and poorer than the United States had welcomed a proportionately larger share than this country.

Describing broad admission of DP's as "a step toward the solution of the country where they never saw an alien, they get queer notions about them."

He said that this feeling, however, had changed since displaced persons have begun to settle in those sections.

Celler's bill, which would admit 339,000 persons over a three-year period, will come before the House next week, he said.

Roosevelt Is Honored

By Yugoslav Statuette

The Communist-dominated government of Yugoslavia yesterday presented a statuette, a figure called "Fight for Freedom," to officials of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Warm Springs Memorial Commission.

The statuette is to be displayed in memory of the late President in the "Little White House," Warm Springs, Ga., where Roosevelt died.

Dr. Sidney R. Miller

Baltimore, May 25 (AP)—Dr. Sidney R. Miller, former president of the American College of Physicians, died here today after a five-year illness. He was 65.

Dr. Miller was for many years associate professor of clinical medicine at the Johns Hopkins University Medical School, and also taught at the University of Maryland.

He had served as president of the American College of Physicians in 1930-31. In 1922, he was elected president of the American Congress on Internal Medicine.

Dr. Miller was a member of many other medical and scientific societies, including the Southern Medical Association, of which he was a former first vice president.

He was born in Newark, N. J., and received his bachelor of science degree from New York University in 1905. In 1910, he was awarded his medical degree from Johns Hopkins, and the following year he married Miss Ella Wood of Ford City, Pa.

Alexei V. Shchusev

Moscow, May 25 (AP)—Alexei Viktorovich Shchusev, 76, Russia's leading architect and a member of the Academy of Sciences, died yesterday. He designed Lenin's mausoleum in Red Square, the Moscow Hotel and other prominent buildings in Moscow and other cities.

In Memoriam

A booklet of 101 "In Memoriam" tributes suitable for publication is now available without charge. Remembrances for all members of the family and for friends are included. The booklet may be obtained at the front counter in the Post building, by telephoning your request, or by writing to the Washington Post Classified Advertising Department, Washington 4, D. C.

Robert Glass, Patent Office Official, Dies

Robert L. Glass, 59, division chief at the United States Patent Office for 21 years, died yesterday at Washington Sanitarium after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Glass, a native Washingtonian, lived at 4102 5th st. n.w. He attended high school here and was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in electrical engineering. He was also an instructor there for a short time.

Later he received his law degree from George Washington University and was admitted to the District Bar.

He entered the service of the Patent Office in 1916 and was made chief of Division 60 in 1928. His old survivor is his wife, the former Lina Hillig, a native of Germany whom he married in 1938.

Services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at the W. W. Deal Funeral Home, 4812 Georgia ave. n.w. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

First Lady, Friends Enjoy Surprise Tercentenary Trip

Annapolis, Md., May 25 (AP)—Annapolis welcomed Mrs. Harry S. Truman to its tercentenary celebration today.

The President's wife arrived with two friends who said they left the White House for a drive in the country and "happened to drop in" for a 3-hour visit.

"I enjoyed every minute of it," said Mrs. Truman, who toured Colonial buildings and reviewed a parade featuring the fifth day of the city's week-long 300th anniversary party.

Mrs. Truman signed guest books in the Colonial buildings she visited as "Bess W. Truman, Independence, Mo."

With Mrs. Truman were Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, and Mrs. Lingo's daughter, Jane Lingo, of Washington.

12 High School Students Win Prizes for Spanish

Uruguayan flags and fountain pens were presented to 12 District high school students for proficiency in Spanish as a ceremony conducted entirely in Spanish at the Pan-American Union yesterday.

The students were winners of a contest sponsored in District schools by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish. The awards were made by Ambassador Alberto Dominguez-Campana of Uruguay.

The winners were: First prize—Jack Starnes, Wilson High School, Washington, D. C.; second prize—Thomas M. Scott, McKinley High School, Washington, D. C.; third prize—Arlene Blackburn, Wilson High School, Washington, D. C.; fourth prize—Joseph A. Collins, Roosevelt High School, Washington, D. C.; fifth prize—Edna C. Foster, Roosevelt High School, Washington, D. C.

Thief Who Put Victim In Phone Booth Seized

Hull, Quebec, May 25 (AP)—A youthful, gun-waving bandit held up Miss Blanche Gendron in her restaurant today and took $38. Then he locked her up while he made his getaway.

But police captured the robber, identified as Patrick Murphy, 19, a few minutes later. He had locked Miss Gendron in a telephone booth.

Lord Strathmore

Forfar, Scotland, May 25 (AP)—The fifteenth Earl of Strathmore and Kintyre, 64, brother of Queen Elizabeth, died today at his family seat, historic Glamis Castle.

Lord Strathmore succeeded his father in 1944. He is succeeded in turn by his 31-year-old son, Lord Glamis, an officer in the Black Watch Regiment.

Lord Strathmore was chairman of two important chemical firms, and deputy governor of the Royal Bank of Scotland.

He served in the Black Watch in France and Belgium in World War I. He married Lady Dorothy Osborne, daughter of the tenth Duke of Leeds.

Gen. Simon H. Spoor

Batavia, Java, May 25 (AP)—Gen. Simon H. Spoor, 47, Dutch commander in chief in the East Indies, died of a heart attack today. He was one of the Netherlands' principal leaders in the Pacific War.

Services Set Today for Mrs. Wills

Funeral services will be conducted today for Mrs. Alvin Lamar Wills, 63, wife of the rector of the Episcopal Church of Our Savior, 16th and Irving sts. n.e.

She died Tuesday at her home, 1328 Webster st. n.e., after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday.

Active in the Washington 10 Readers Club, Mrs. Wills often acted in Shakespearean productions of the group.

She was a member of the women's auxiliary of her husband's church, and of the Daughters of the King, another church organization. She also belonged to the Episcopal Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and to Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

A native of Mason County, Ky., she was graduated from Northwestern University in 1908. Following her marriage in 1911, she received her master's degree in 1916 from Columbia University.

She followed her husband from a post at Columbia, Mo., where she taught English literature at Christian College, to Chicago, and then to Covington, Ky. She came to Washington in 1930, her husband became assistant pastor of the Church of the Epiphany. He took over his present post in 1935.

Besides her husband, she leaves three children: Mrs. Lora Clay, 1005 N. Larrimore st., Arlington; Marshall Wills, Raleigh, N. C.; and Geoffrey Wills, a student at Northwestern University.

Services will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. in the Church of Our Savior by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington. Burial will follow in National Memorial Park Cemetery.

Pistol Game Is Fatal to Oxon Hill GI

Pvt. Addison Bryant, Jr., 3763 Livingston rd., Oxon Hill, Md., was shot fatally Saturday in Kyoto, Japan, by a fellow military policeman in a playful gun-drawing contest. Associated Press dispatches said yesterday.

According to the dispatches, Bryant and Pvt. Donald Cornelison of Rome, Ga., met in the provost marshal's office at Pvt. Bryant's post.

Kyoto, as they were changing guard. They pulled their pistols in wild West showman style to see who was quicker on the draw. Cornelison's pistol went off. Bryant fell dead.

Bryant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Bryant, Sr., of the Livingston rd. address.

A native of Oxon Hill, he was a member of Oxon Hill Methodist Church, where he was vice president of the Youth Fellowship when he enlisted in the Army September 1, 1947. He attended Oxon Hill High School. He had been in Japan a year.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Marlon Bryant, 143 Xenia st. se., and William B. Bryant of the Livingston rd. address, and two sisters, Mrs. George Bell of Livingston rd., and Mrs. Edwin Bell of 1445 V st. se.

Capt. Alvin J. Jensen

Memorial services for Capt. Alvin J. Jensen, 28-year-old Marine flying ace who died in a jet plane crash last Friday, will be held at 3 p. m. today in Fort Myer Chapel at Arlington Cemetery.

Captain Jensen was killed during a test flight at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., when wing of his plane sheared off, plummeting the craft into Chesapeake Bay.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Catherine Jensen, of San Diego, his wife, the former Elaine Insko, and a sister Mrs. Dean Jaynes, of Tennessee.

Hooker Rites Scheduled For Friday

Graveside services for Lieut. Col. John Condit-Smith Hooker, USA, 48, who died at Fort Bragg, N. C., Sunday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieutenant Colonel Hooker will be buried near the grave of his father, Col. Richard S. Hooker, USA, who died in 1932 in Shanghai, China, where he commanded the Fourth Marine Regiment during the Sino-Japanese War.

Born at the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn, Lieutenant Colonel Hooker lived for a time at 1814 Jefferson pl. n.w., the family residence of his mother, the late Mary Condit-Smith Hooker. Mrs. Hooker was the sister-in-law of the late Gen. Leonard Wood.

Lieutenant Colonel Hooker attended Groton Academy and West Point. He commanded a tank destroyer unit in the Pacific in World War II.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ann Clifford of Crossville, Ill., and a daughter, Hope Hooker, both of Fort Bragg; a son, Capt. John C. Hooker of Camp Campbell, Ky., and a brother, Capt. Richard S. Hooker, USMC, Naval Gun Factory.

Archbishop Officiates at Cooper Rites

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, yesterday officiated at a pontifical mass of requiem for the Right Rev. John M. Cooper, head of the department of anthropology at Catholic University, who died Sunday.

The service was at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, and burial was in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The eulogy was delivered by the Right Rev. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the department of religious education at C. U. Msgr. Sheehy paid tribute to Msgr. Cooper as a scientist, scholar and priest who was "gentle and kind in personal relationships, but an uncompromising foe to scholastic fakery and shoddy pseudoscholarship."

Msgr. Sheehy recalled that Msgr. Cooper organized, directed and for the most part financed the Catholic Anthropological Association. He said he left to the university "an enduring monument" in his anthropological collections.

both of Fort Bragg; a son, Capt. John C. Hooker of Camp Campbell, Ky., and a brother, Capt. Richard S. Hooker, USMC, Naval Gun Factory.

Rosecroft Opens Maryland's Harness Season Tonight

THE WASHINGTON POST
Thursday, May 26, 1949
5B

New Track May Attract 12,000 Fans

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Rosecroft Raceway gets Maryland's harness racing season underway at 8 o'clock tonight at its classy Oxon Hill plant.

The Free State's brand-new entry in the harness boom is opening

Two Best Routes

To Rosecroft Track

Best ways to reach the Rosecroft Raceway, Oxon Hill, Md., 9½ miles from the Capitol:

Out Penna. av. se.; over 17th Street Bridge; turn right on Branch rd. which leads to St. Barnabas rd., turn left on Brinkley rd., or a 20-night meeting with track officials optimistically predicting a crowd of 12,000 to 15,000.

If it materializes, it will be the largest gathering ever to turn out around these parts for the trotters and pacers. Laurel Raceway pioneered the sport last summer and had its biggest night when 10,000 watched the last program and wagered $336,973.

Tonight's opening will be in typical racetrack fashion. Two weeks ago, Johnny Miller, secretary-treasurer and son of President William E. Miller, was quite sure he had everything under control.

But, right now, the usual break-neck pace to meet opening deadline is in progress. Heavy rains over the weekend, capped by the torrential downpour Tuesday night, haven't helped matters.

Yesterday's sunny, windy weather was a big improvement, though, and today's predicted sunshine should dry thoroughly the track and grounds.

In fact, the horses were on the track at 11 a. m. yesterday and hundreds went through their paces . . . or trots.

Harness people are enthused over the $800,000 Rosecroft establishment. They call it first class in every respect. Top racing officials have been employed and dinners will be served in the swank clubhouse with the famed Stevens Brothers catering.

Racing Secretary Ed Keller, one of the best in the business, bosses the program. This is the eighth new harness track Keller has helped open in the last few years. "It's the best opening program I've ever carded," Keller said yesterday. "At least four of the races would have been feature events at the other tracks."

Three successive meetings in Maryland—Rosecroft, Laurel and Ocean City—have attracted top-grade harness horses.

Tonight's top race is The Innovation, a $1000 event for free-for-all trotters, all ages. Expected to be a 7-5 favorite at post-time is Seattle Dean, 5-year-old bay with Warren Holmes at the reins.

BREEZE UP BREEZES—And Owner-Driver Joe Eyer, Thurmont, Md., hopes his crack trotter, Breeze Up, goes just as easily in the fourth race tonight when Rosecroft Raceway opens its lavish $800,000 plant at Oxon Hill. The sport continues for 20 nights at Rosecroft.

Record 28,573 See Nats Beat Indians, 6-2

Hudson was making his lead stand up nicely.

Joe Gordon opened the fourth with a single to right, and Keltner forced him at second and that was the scene when Doby arrived at the plate. The hit that came off his bat was a jet-job that took on the proportions of a marble as the ball disappeared into the darkness beyond the scoreboard wall.

IN SHORT . . . The early comers had a look at Bob Feller working on the mound for the Indians—in batting practice . . . after playing all of the Nats' previous games, Gil Coan was benched by Manager Joe Kuhel on account of a .250 batting average . . . it was the wrangling game of the year in the stadium. Kuhel screamed at the Indians' second inning, claiming Doby interfered with Robertson at second base . . . and in the Nats' half, he disputed Jim Boyer's decision on Al Evans at second base so loudly he got the thumbs . . . the Indians climbed on the umpires in the third, claiming Eddie Yost had struck out on a pitch that was called a foul tip . . . with the Nats holding a 6-0 lead after two innings, Kozar was moved in at second base as a defensive measure . . . Buddy Lewis, after being benched for a week because of a .169 batting average, tripled and singled his first two times up . . . tonight, Mickey Haefer pitched against another knuckle baffle, Gene Bearden.

Bums Win, Robinson Hits Homer

Pittsburgh, May 25 (AP)—Brooklyn's surging Dodgers completed a highly successful invasion of the West today by whipping the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-4.

Fine relief hurling by Rookie Jack Banta and a 13-hit attack, led again by Jackie Robinson, brought the Dodgers their fourth victory in their last five games.

Robinson, continuing his hitting rampage, clubbed a two-run homer and a single, and got on base four times. It was his sixth homer of the year and ran his league-leading runs batted in total to 34.

Philadelphia Athletics protected their hold on second place in the American League tonight, defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6-4, on the strength of a five-run fourth-inning attack. A double play halted a ninth-inning rally by the Sox.

Schneider's 66 Leads PGA; Lew Worsham Shoots 71

Langley Field, needed only 21 puts. He knocked in a 90-yard wedge shot on the fourteenth for an eagle duce and barely missed collaring Schneider on the eightteenth when a 20-footer lipped the cup, but rolled off. It would have given him a birdie duce and 66.

As has been the case with him so many times that it's no longer news, Snead's 69 could have easily been a 67 or maybe a 66. He three-putted the eighth hole from 12 feet out, and outdied even that horrid performance on No. 9 where he three-putted from 10 feet away.

In short—long-hitting Chick Harbert drove his tee shot off No. 1 into the trap guarding No. 3 green and a few minutes later planted his second shot on No. 3 into the same trap. This sort of consistency earned him a fat 76—Jimmy Demaret, a pace setter in the sartorial league, has abandoned his flashy berets now that they've become stylish with the other pros—Isaacs didn't even qualify for the PGA, but came in the last minute as an alternate—cheered on by Maury Nee and a good tee shot on No. 4, Al Houghton, the Grey Ghost of Prince Georges, had a 77.

Whitehorn Elected By Psychiatrists

Condition 'Fair'

Girl Bitten By Dog Gets 60 Stitches

A 4-year-old Arlington girl who police said had been savagely bitten by a neighbor's dog was in "fair" condition in Arlington Hospital yesterday after doctors took between 60 and 80 stitches in her face.

The victim, Carolyn Joyce Funston, was bitten while playing in her yard at 1811 N. Veitch st. on Monday, police said.

The dog, a large German shepherd, normally is chained, according to the police report, but was freed Monday by a child.

Wilson L. Dodson, 1905 Veitch st., listed as the dog's owner, was charged Tuesday with "keeping a vicious dog." Complaint was made by the girl's father, Chester C. Funston.

Dodson pleaded innocent to the charge yesterday in Arlington County Court and his case was continued until Friday.

First New 1949 Comet

Cambridge, Mass., May 25 (AP). The year's first new comet—described as very faint and not visible to the naked eye—has been discovered by a Johannesburg, South Africa, astronomer, it was announced today by Dr. Harlow Shapley of Harvard Observatory.

Montreal, May 25 (AP).—Dr. John C. Whitehorn, psychiatrist in chief at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, today was chosen president-elect of the American Psychiatric Association.

He was elected to head the association next year, succeeding Dr. George S. Stevenson of New York. In the annual meeting of the APA at Montreal, Dr. William C. Menninger of Topeka, Kans., is scheduled to turn over the presidency to Dr. Stevenson at the current convention's close.

Besides being head psychiatrist at the Baltimore hospital, Dr. Whitehorn is Henry Phipps professor of psychiatry and director of the department of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University. He was 1946 president of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Whitehorn, 54, a native of Doane College, Crete, Neb., and Harvard University, where he received his M.D. degree in 1921. He then taught and served in psychiatry, physiology and chemistry for 17 years in New England before becoming professor in psychiatry at Washington University, St. Louis. He joined the staffs of the Baltimore university and hospital in 1941.

Dr. Whitehorn served in 1945 with the War Department Commission on Combat Exhaustion in the European war theater. One of his sons, Alfred Jean, had been killed in action in Germany the preceding November.

He has two other children, Richard M. and Joanne, and lives with his family in Baltimore.

One More Step and . . . ? ?

SEARCH'S END—Margaret Laverne James, 3, in Indian Head Community Center after being found perched on the side of a 90-foot bank of the Potomac during Tuesday night's thunderstorm, would have fallen into the river had she taken a few more steps.

Three-year-old Margaret Laverne James, whose disappearance Tuesday at 6 p. m. touched off a search by nearly 500 persons, was found shortly before 3 a. m. yesterday, fast asleep in a clump of honeysuckle.

Clad only in a light blue dress, the barefoot, blonde and chubby daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Homer James of Potomac Heights was examined by Dr. Virginia Harris, pediatric consultant for the Maryland State Health Department. She indicated the child was unhurt, but suffering slightly from exposure.

Searchers, who had combed wooded areas and river banks for trace of the missing child, used trucks equipped with searchlights and public address systems to cover the 260 units of the Potomac Heights Government housing project and outlying areas. Cooperating with Potomac Heights residents were Navy and Marine personnel from the Naval Powder Factory in Indian Head and nearly 200 soldiers from Andrews Field, where LaVerne's father is stationed.

The child was rescued by George M. Craig, 36, James Grinder, 20, Edward Lewis, 23 and Robert Morgan, 17, all of Potomac Heights. She was found about one mile from the house where she was last seen, and halfway down a 90-foot bank sloping at a 45-degree angle into the Potomac River.

LaVerne had been playing in the back yard of a neighbor's home with her sister, Wanda, 6, when she apparently wandered off. Police said her mother, Mrs. Myrtle James, was committed to the Charles County jail on charges of leaving the scene of an accident at Indian Head Sunday night.

Mrs. James also is charged with driving a car after her operator's license had been revoked, police said.

Sergeant James, notified of his daughter's disappearance, went to the scene and waited nervously for results of the search in the recreation hall, center of operations.

Police Outspeed Ambulance, Help Deliver Arlington Baby

Two Arlington patrolmen, who normally deliver to the county jail, yesterday helped deliver a 6-pound, 1-ounce baby boy when his mother was unable to get to the hospital in time.

The mother, Mrs. Thomas E. Butcher, 23, and her son both were doing nicely in Arlington Hospital last night after the unexpected, predecease birth.

Police Pts. Russell Runyon and Sigmund Sigmundsson, cruising in their scout car early yesterday, went to the Butcher's house at 2605 S. Eighth st. when their dispatcher reported a private ambulance had been called to that number.

They found Mrs. Butcher in labor, her husband standing by, and no ambulance in sight. Runyon ordered towels, hot water and with the help of Sigmundsson and a neighbor, delivered the baby before the ambulance arrived.

"Assist" is Second The incident may have been helpful to Sigmundsson, whose wife is expecting their first child momentarily. Runyon, also married, has one child.

It was Private Runyon's second "assist" at a childbirth. The first was about a year ago when he helped deliver a baby in the Shirley Homes development in Arlington.

Roger Thompson of 408 Ridge st. n.w., waived a preliminary hearing in Alexandria Police Court on a charge he broke into a laundry room at Old Dominion Garden apartments on Glebe rd. three times in the past four months and took $125.

Police were waiting May 8 and said they shot Thompson after he had broken into the laundry room and tried to escape.

8 Years' Grit Takes Nurse To Reunion

It took eight years of grit to take Eleanor Stewart, 31, back to the reunion of her Sibley Hospital nurses' training class yesterday.

Victim of a crippling auto accident in 1941, dark-haired, bright-eyed Eleanor had a right to the air of pride she wore when she joined 15 other members of her 1939 class for luncheon at the Dodge Hotel.

"It's the first time I've been out on a purely social visit in nearly

The Washington Post

Wheels her way there

nine years," Eleanor said with a happy smile.

An ambulance was provided to help her make the trip in her wheel chair from her home at 1501 Kearney st. n.e.

"Pure determination" saw her through years at Gallinger Hospital with compound fractures of both legs—one of which was amputated—and head injuries which interfered with speech, vision, hearing, and finger movements for a time.

Last fall Miss Stewart moved to the home of her sister, Mrs. Helen Dwyer, where six hours of physiotherapy exercises still are a daily chore.

"But we are getting results. I couldn't sit alone until a year ago," Miss Stewart points out. "Now I'm beginning to walk."

An artificial leg will aid her within a month, and the nurse has an eye on a job as receptionist at a hospital.

What's helped her in this long fight back to normal living?

"Nothing except people being so swell," Eleanor says. "Eight years is a long time for people to keep on being nice, and they have been."

$25,000 Check Greets

Woman at Radio Show

New York, May 25 (AP).—A Maryland housewife, who came here last night to be in a radio show, was greeted with a $25,000 check for a prize she already had won without knowing it.

"I just can't believe it," gasped Mrs. Pauline Lucy, 55, of Salisbury, Md.

Mrs. Lucy, whose husband runs a country store and gas station, said she now would build a new house to replace their small frame home on Highway 13.

She said she often sat on the porch watching cars on their way to Florida and added: "Maybe we can take the trip ourselves now."

When you gotta stop
-you wanta stop!

"I can stop on a dime," the salesman promised you, "—and leave nine cents change!"

And your Buick did — when it was new and brake linings unworn and everything factory-tight and fresh.

But brake linings wear — lights grow dim with time — tires can lose their bite and traction.

And with a whole summer's driving ahead, what better time than this to bring your Buick back to new-car peak in all those details that mean so much to safety?

Our men, trained in Buick ways, will give you brakes that stop you as Buicks should, with new brake linings that are right in size and brake drums turned to perfect round.

They can replace sealed-beam headlights to give you new-bulb brilliance — and while they're at it, check battery, voltage, wiring and headlamp aim to boot.

They'll check tires, switch them as needed, look into wheel alignment for easy steering.

In a word, they'll renew your Buick with the same care and interest they would lavish on their own — and do it at no greater cost than for just ordinary service.

So drop in. Get set for some summer fun that's up to lively Buick standard.

Check your car ---
Check accidents!

Three great service and safety organizations across the country are alerting car-owners everywhere this month to safety-checking their cars.

They list ten vital question marks for you to think about — How are your Brakes? Lights? Tires? Steering? Wheel alignment? Defective glass? Rear-view mirror? Muffler? Windshield wipers? Horn?

Be sure your family rides in safety — ask your Buick service men to look over these check-points this month — and join the great drive for driving safety!

AT 2½, Dorothy Glading can charm the birds off the trees, so it's small wonder she has Nurse Lois Dunkum and Laboratory Technician Grace Bitondi as devoted slaves.

WHERE there are teeth, there have to be dentists, but pretty female dentists usually bring on more grins than grimaces. Dr. Lisa Pierrard, a French import, has just completed a dental internship at Children's Hospital. Nine-year-old Tom Williams, Jr., of Arlington seems to find this visit pleasant enough.

FINDING a secretary who can spell pneumonolithiasis isn't easy. There is a great demand for girls trained as medical secretaries and even for secretaries who can learn quickly on the job. Miss Helen Guest, secretary in the department of psychiatry, gives Dr. Bruce Martin some help, too.

More to Be Done Than Meets the Eye

Women's Hospital Service Isn't Limited to Nursing

By Sonia Stein

MINISTERING to the needs of the sick can take many avenues—and most of them are open to women. Hospital halls are a-rustle with petticoats, and by no means all of them belong to nurses.

Between the positions of staff doctor, which requires the most training, and cleaning woman, which requires the least, there are a number of interesting positions for women with various training—not necessarily medical.

At the top, there is the hospital administrator. Especially in small hospitals, this position is apt to be held by a woman. Besides having business training, the administrator should know a bit about other phases of hospital operation, because in the small hospital the administrator is often personnel manager, public relations director, purchasing agent and half a dozen other things as well.

The large hospitals usually have a man as administrator, often a physician. But in Washington there are five women hospital administrators, most of whom have had nurse's training first. Sister Marie at Providence, Sister Mary Antonella at Georgetown, Miss E. M. Rogers at Casualty, Miss Gladys Phillips at Homeopathic and Deaconess Margaret Bechtol at Episcopal.

Courses Given

Several universities give courses in hospital administration and there is a growing trend toward hiring only those applicants with such training. It is usually a three-year course given to students who

Falling prey to the wiles of the tiny patients is one of the dangers in hospital work, but it's a harmless risk all of the hospital personnel is most willing to take have already received their bachelor's degree.

In Michigan, State law requires that only such trained administrators, or others with at least five years experience in the work, be hired.

Salaries for this position vary widely with the location, size and ownership of the hospital, but $5000 is about as low as it goes.

The very first woman to be listed on the George Washington University faculty in 1899 was the hospital superintendent, Miss A. G. O'Dell. The personnel director at the university hospital estimates that in most hospitals now, there are as many women employed in other skilled jobs as are employed in nursing.

Purchasing agents are often women, and Ralph Cundiff, who is now acting as consultant to the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area, which is setting up a purchasing division, says that women are highly adaptable to the work.

"A large block of the work is in the field of food and textiles and women have better basic judgment on both of these than the average man," he claims.

Women with nursing training are especially well qualified to purchase medical supplies but that isn't required. Mr. Cundiff cited Miss Ada Harris at Providence and Sister Mary Evangelist at Georgetown as outstandingly good purchasing agents.

Varied Field

Some of the women workers at Children's Hospital are shown in their varied and emotionally rewarding tasks; only a few of the jobs available within the broad the accompanying pictures at outline of hospital work.

There is a field for personnel workers, public relations experts and laundry managers.

Photographers are needed in the public relations departments and to do medical photography.

The fields of physical therapy and occupational therapy are wide open to women, and are often most rewarding. The joy of watching a paralyzed youngster relearn the use of wasted muscles would compensate for much unpleasantness in a job, but these two fields are usually pleasant ones anyway.

Training is required for both the physical therapists, and the occupational therapists who teach muscular and mental coordination through concrete handicrafts and art projects.

Physicists Needed

Physicists who can work with medical isotopes are now needed.

Medical social work is a field wide open to trained women, and librarians trained in medical records work or able to learn on the job are in demand.

Qualified medical secretaries are always very much in demand. Many of them are former nurses but even such training as is given to nurses' aides may make a good secretary equal to the medical secretary's task.

There are a number of other jobs more obviously related to medicine which are open to women with training: bacteriology, psychology, psychic research, chemistry. Laboratory technicians are frequently women, and in small hospitals they can hope to be in charge of a lab. X-ray technicians are also needed.

About Party Games for 4-Year-Olds

My little girl's fourth birthday is in June. We have a large back yard, and I would like to have a lawn party. Would you suggest some games that would be simple and still hold the attention of 4-year-olds? O. D. McC.

Four-year-olds have not learned much as yet about the sort of co-operation necessary to play games. So, unless there are to be some older children in the group to take the lead on the games, your best bet is not to attempt games in this age group. You could provide balloons for blowing up and the children would have fun batting them around the yard. Or, gather them around and have someone who is good at it tell a story.

If there are to be a few older children in the group you might get most of the little ones to play games with them. Hide and Seek and Drop the Handkerchief are simple enough that the little ones will catch on quickly. Do not at-

'College Week for Women' Set

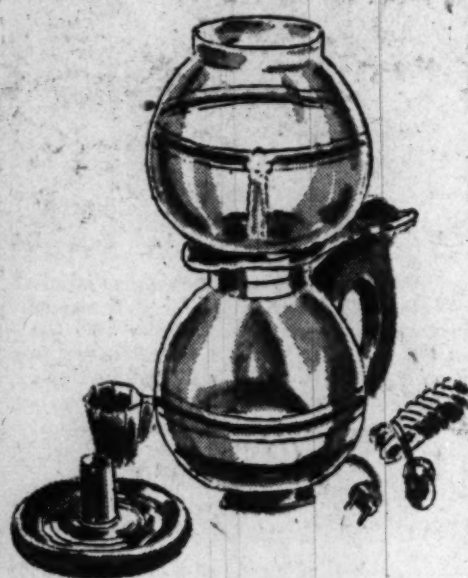

The University of Maryland will open its gates to homemakers of Maryland June 13-18 for the twenty-third annual Rural Women's Short Course, often called "College Week for Women."

All interested women are invited to attend the course, which will be based on the theme, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." There will be regular classes in foods, nutrition, home furnishing, public speaking, landscape gardening, music appreciation, radio, journalism, family life and other subjects, with special talks by speakers of national and international fame.

To register for the course, call the county home demonstration agent at Hyattsville 0531, before June 1. Prince Georges county residents may attend the courses as day students, if they desire.

To C.M., E.J. and Y.F.: We regret to advise you that we do not handle flower questions in this column.

Is it always necessary to have white hat, bag and shoes for hot summer wear in order to be in fashion? After paying a good stiff price for black calf bag, shoes and black hat I would like to know if these cannot be worn all through the summer with summer dresses. The hat is rather large and my summer dresses are beige, aqua and different colored prints. G. W. M.

Yes, indeed, black accessories can be very properly worn with summer dresses. As a matter of fact, many fashion wise women choose dark accessories for the light summer colors because they feel it gives the costume an accent not achieved by white or light accessories. Black would be lovely with beige, aqua and colored prints especially if the prints have a touch of black or dark in them.

How can one cleanse mixing bowls for use in the kitchen after they have been used to hold permanent wave fluid?

APPRECIATIVE READER
Fill the bowls with hot water, add a handful of washing soda and let stand overnight. In the morning wash and rinse thoroughly.

How can a wall plaque made from plaster of paris be mended where it is chipped and broken?

APPRECIATIVE READER
If the chipped and broken places are not too large, you can fill them in with patching plaster. This can be purchased in small quantities at hardware stores. It is mixed with water to the consistency of paste. Since it hardens slowly you will have ample time to apply it to the chipped places and work it into the original shape for that part with the fingers. Allow to dry

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reared on Farm, Father Believes Son, 9, Should Help on Milk Delivery Route This Summer; Mother Disagrees; Who Is Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband insists that our second child, a boy of 9, should help him on Saturdays and during the coming summer vacation. Helping him consists in delivering milk to certain customers, and they would be making the rounds until about 3:30 p. m. daily.

However, Jimmie says that all the other children play on Saturdays and go to camp during summer vacation, so why shouldn't he? To that his father says, "I didn't go to camp when I was a child. I was lucky to have a roof over my head and three meals a day, without thinking about camp and spending money."

My husband was brought up the hard way. He says that since he helped his father on their farm when he was a small child, and it never harmed him, he sees no reason why Jimmie shouldn't help him. What do you think? Do you agree with my husband, or do you think a child of 9 is too young to work?

Although I never take sides in Jimmie's presence, I have privately argued against my husband's attitude; and after talking things over, we have agreed to ask your advice and abide by whatever you say.

C. L.

Child Thrives Best on Being a Child

DEAR C. L.: Having grown up on a farm, surely your husband knows that plants and animals have a natural cycle of growth that cannot be successfully hurried. They need a certain amount of time and a certain kind of care to bring out their full potentials.

The same is true of humans, too; and in principle a child ought to be granted the right to be a child during the years of childhood, just as a calf is a calf and not a breeder or a milk producer, and a colt is a colt and not a dray horse—yet.

Thus I say that unless it's a hardship case—of work or starvation—a child shouldn't be driven to help earn the family living, so that he is deprived of leisure for kicking up his heels, soaking in sunshine, companionship, seeds of enterprise in the way of hobbies, recreation, etc., a good part of the day.

Please understand, however, that I'm not advising butterfly freedom from teamwork for a child. Every child should be home-trained to take on, a little at a time, personal chores and cooperative duties suited to his years, intelligence, strength and dexterity.

FOR EXAMPLES: The average child aged three should be dressing himself, or at least working at it. At five, picking up his own toys after play is a suitable added chore. At seven, school work plus the foregoing seems a fair load. And by nine he's pulling his weight if he has a system for keeping his shoes cleaned, his desk, room and closet tidy; for doing yard and/or kitchen chores and running specified errands, and studying faithfully in season.

Time enough at 13, and not before, to use Jimmie as milkman's helper or apprentice handyman on the place during summers; and until then I think he should have an annual outing, at least a fortnight but preferably a month if you can afford it, at summer camp—for the wider education in social behavior it gives boys.

Your husband's open mind to your "moderator" attitude is commendable. It means that basically he has good instincts, despite the fact that his cramped childhood somewhat distorts his perspective on a child's inherent rights, and also, perhaps, makes him unconsciously resentful of childhood privileges granted other small fry.

Soroptimists Honor 10 Top Students

Ten senior high school honor students yesterday were awarded the Washington Soroptimist Club's honor keys at a luncheon in their honor at the Willard Hotel.

Many of the District's top educators, including the Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, director of education of the Archdiocese of Washington and Dr. Hobart Corning, Superintendent of Public Schools, were present to congratulate the winners.

Honor Group

With each of the honor key students came her assistant principal. The group includes: Dona Huttsler of Anacostia, accompanied by Mrs. O. H. Corkey; Joan Nancy Findlay of Calvin Coolidge, with Miss Agot Nordby; Marilyn Mack of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, with Mrs. McCain Smith; Angela Cody Bachman of Eastern, with Miss Freda D. Egbert; Mary Ann Larsen of McKinley, with Miss Miriam Selah; Patricia Furlong of Notre Dame Academy, with Miss Anna C. Wolfe; Elizabeth Manny of Roosevelt, with Mrs. Elva C. Wells; Barbara Ann Worley of Western, with Miss Irene Rice, and Naomi Pollin of Woodrow Wilson, with Miss Virginia Ronsaville.

Each of the honor key winners was chosen by the faculty of her school for leadership, scholastic achievement and service to her school.

Challenge to Service

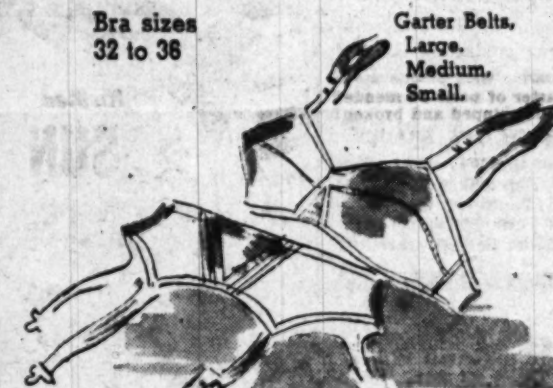

In congratulating the youthful key winners, Dr. Corning admonished them, "It's an honor and at the same time a challenge to have your achievements and service recognized. For nothing is more needed in this busy world than leadership and service."

He pointed out that the achievements of the 10 girls were not accidental but the result of careful home and church training, sacrificial service on the part of teachers, plus the responsiveness of the individual students to opportunities.

Monsignor Spence said that recognition of the Catholic schools along with those of the public schools is "an augury of the fine comradeship that exists between the authorities of the public and

Church Gives Fashion Show For Vacationers

A fashion show for the vacation-minded was conducted last night at the Foundry Methodist Church to raise funds for building improvements. Included in the show was the proper gown for that prelude to a particular kind of vacation—the bridal gown.

Models for the show included professional models from Jelleff's, Inc. which provided the fashions, and five models from the congregation. The five nonprofessional models were Mrs. Frederick Brown Harris, wife of the minister of the Foundry Methodist Church; their daughter, Mrs. Don Franklin Harris, Mrs. Harry L. Underwood, Mrs. Austin P. Gattis, Justin Lawrie, minister of music for the church, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening's events, which included spelling bees for both ladies and gentlemen. Glenn Carow, church organist, played during the evening. Chairman of the fashion show, which was sponsored by the Schoettler-Wheeler Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service at the church, was Mrs. William Olin Burtner.

Post Ads helped double his used car sales Reports Mr. J. E. Slagle

Old Dominion Motors, Inc.
633 NORTH PITT STREET
ALEXANDRIA - VIRGINIA

May 17, 1949

The Washington Post
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sirs:

You will doubtless be glad to hear that I am very pleased with my automotive advertising in the Washington Post.

I started with your Mr. Gray's series of "Bromides" March 8th and have been running that series twice each week-end since that date. My March retail sales of used automobiles more than doubled the sales of the previous month. In April my retail unit sales of used cars passed the 100 mark.

I certainly feel that the Post has had a share in this accomplishment and I wish to convey whatever credit is due along to you.

Response traced specifically to the Post ads has been extremely gratifying.

Sincerely,
J. E. Slagle
President

OLD DOMINION MOTORS, INC.

Perhaps you have noticed the clever "Bromides" ads which have been appearing for Old Dominion Motors in the classified columns of The Post. Undoubtedly their attention value has been beneficial in getting Post readers in the market for a used car to look over Old Dominion's selections. Certainly the excellence of the values being offered by Mr. Slagle's firm was the deciding factor in closing the sales for him.

But selection of The Post was an important part of the advertising and sales program, too. Post readers have a special feeling about their newspaper, and Post advertisers participate in that confidence. Result: advertising of good products and services in The Post produces excellent results, as Mr. Slagle, and hundreds of others, have learned to their gratification and profit.

Do you have a sales and advertising problem? Call The Post's advertising department — National 4200.

Variety of Hospital Careers Open to Women

clans are scarce and women are welcome.

At a hospital like Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat in Washington, there are orthoptic technicians who train people in eye coordination. This kind of work, which is taught at George Washington University Hospital, and refraction work (testing eyes) is done by women at Episcopal.

Hospitals are almost self-sufficient communities within four-walls and there is scarcely a type of work which doesn't have to be done within them.

If a national health insurance plan is approved by Congress, there is almost certain to be an increased use of hospitals, and a consequent increased need of hospital personnel.

Financial rewards are not usually commensurate with other similar jobs on the "outside," partly because many hospitals are not self-supporting and cannot be self-sufficient in the wages they pay.

However, there are frequently small compensations in the form of free laundry, hospitalization and meals, and the big, spiritual compensation that comes with doing an important job for humanity.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

In the early years of a child's life it is perfectly normal for him to center most of his interests on himself. Parents should not worry about such self-centeredness. He will grow out of it. As a matter of fact, the youngster must learn to know about the world about him through his relation to it. Sometimes, indeed, this egotism is quite amusing. When our son was four or five, we were visiting relatives in California. Since we believed it was time that he should be helped to realize that he wasn't the center of everybody's interest all the time, we had asked the folks not to pay too much attention to this first grandson of theirs. After trying all sorts of stunts to gain attention without success, he turned to the family dog and said, "Watch me turn a somersault, doggie." If people wouldn't watch him, he'd be satisfied with the dog.

So when one hears "I" or "me" or "my" over and over again it pays to relax. Gradually, if the youngster is given plenty of attention and affection when he's not showing off, it won't be necessary for the self-centeredness to continue.

Doc Sizes Up Situation, Makes Diagnosis

Peter Cooper of 925 K st. se. says that a friend of his played golf with one of our better known psychiatrists the other day.

Before going out on the links, the doctor carefully removed his street shoes, for the usual change. It wasn't until they got to the seventh hole that the psychiatrist exclaimed:

"I knew there was something wrong. I put on the same shoes I took off."

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

If you own a homing pigeon which carries the number 292 AU 45 AFC and are wondering what's happened to him, you ought to check with Capt. J. R. Weisser, USMC, Chief of Surgery at the U. S. Naval Hospital at Quantico, Va.

Incidentally, he's a rather intelligent pigeon. He broke his leg on this flight—and unerringly picked out Surgeon Weisser, who put the leg in splints.

DOGMATIC SUGGESTION

Paul H. Oehser of 3119 N. 8th st., Arlington, Va., notes that everybody whose name has appeared in this column is now eligible to join the newly formed District Lovers Club. He wonders whether it wouldn't also be a good idea to form a Quadruped Auxiliary for all the cats and dogs that have found homes through our Give-Aways. Paul suggests that their annual meetings might be held in Alley, Mo.; St. Bernard, Ala.; Beagle, Kans.; Kitty Hawk, N. C.; Dog Creek, Ky.; Harking, Pa.; Dogue, Va.; Cat Creek, Mont.; or Callett, Va.

Not a bad idea, Paul. And if the cats and dogs at the annual convention are ever drenched by a sudden rainstorm, they could complain in unison:

"Did you ever see such a downpour? It's raining men and women."

PRIORITY LEGISLATION

Ray Everett of the Social Hygiene Society suggests that Congress should enact a law limiting all American League baseball games to seven innings. It's the eighth and ninth that have been murdering our Nats.

GIVE-AWAYS

Four 7-week-old kittens; healthy, chubby, playful. (Sligo 3818 before 5 p.m.)

"Black male kitten, 7 weeks old, cute as a button." (Lockwood 5-0036, evenings.) "Affectionate, trained 2-month-old kitten; sounds like a steam engine when she purrs." (Juniper 7-6392.)

REVISED VERSION

Marty Frank of 3416 A st. se. is puzzled. In the May 23 edition of The Washington Post he read Drew Pearson's item on special privileges for Senators on Capitol elevators, and found this passage:

"Only one Senator scorns this special privilege. He is Kentucky's homespun Senator Garrett Withers, who figures he is no better than anyone else. In fact, he scolds elevator boys who try to take him to his destination ahead of turn."

Up to this point, Marty had no difficulty. Then he picked up the New York Daily Mirror for the same date, and scanned the same issue of the syndicated Pearson column. To his surprise, he read:

"Only one Senator scorns this privilege—lives of N. Y., who rides like a tourist."

When Mr. Pearson's office was questioned about the discrepancy, the answer was an incredulous:

"What's that? Ives? Oh, no. Mr. Pearson wrote it the way it appeared in The Washington Post. It looks like somebody on the Mirror had his own ideas about the item."

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

The other day we carried the picture of "Plain Joe Jones," whose wife entered him in our Most Handsome Man derby, and observed: "He's not so plain at that."

From Lois Hicks-Beach, way down at 701 South St., Key West, Fla., comes a note which says:

"Imagine my surprise to pick up my Post and find a picture of our old friend Joe Jones. He's quite a guy—and Mrs. Joe is no slouch, either. I'd enter them any old day in a contest to find the Nicest Couple in Town." There's a dandy idea for some future date—as soon as we get these handsome men sorted out.

CONTINUED STORY

The announcement that the Alger Hiss trial has been delayed for a sixth time makes me realize that I have forgotten just what he's being tried for. I know it had something to do with a pumpkin, but I can't remember what.

Maybe when the trial finally does get under way the newspapers will run a synopsis of what happened in the earlier installments, so that we can pick up the thread of the plot again.

Meet Reds Halfway—Vandenberg

By Drew Pearson

Before Secretary of State Acheson left for Paris, he stopped by Capitol Hill for some last-minute, parting advice, which will shed light on some of the policies of the United States will follow at the Big Four conference.

Two big questions came up during the hour-long session in a closed-door conference:

1. How far should we go in conciliating Russia?

2. Where should we draw the line on German recovery?

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan cautioned the Secretary of State against taking too stern a stand with the Russians. He agreed we mustn't give ground or show signs of appeasement, but at the same time he urged keeping an open mind to any honest peace overtures. His attitude was that we shouldn't "burn the last bridge."

Senator Thomas of Utah was blunt and to the point about rebuilding Germany. "Is there any feeling anywhere," he asked, "that we should rearm Germany as a buffer against Russia?"

Acheson assured not, but Thomas kept hammering this point home. He warned that Germany, when she gets her strength back, might side with Russia; that Germany has closer ties to the East than the West; that the Germans even started rebuilding their army and navy across the Russian border after World War I. Thousands of Germans actually worked inside Russia until Hitler bit the hand that was helping him, Thomas recalled.

Wacht am Ruhr

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts argued that we should strengthen Germany's economy without building up her war-making capacity. To prevent a resurrection of German military power, he demanded that Acheson insist upon a close watch on Germany's forces and factories.

The Secretary of State promised this would be done. He added that Russia would have nothing to say about the Ruhr, since she got nothing from the Ruhr in peacetime.

"What do you mean by Russia?" Senator Thomas broke in. "If you mean the satellite states, then Russia has all the interest in the world in the Ruhr."

Central European countries, now behind the Iron Curtain, he added, always did a big business with the Ruhr, which would give Russia a voice in deciding the fate of the Ruhr.

Acheson and Vandenberg also engaged in a brief dispute over whether the right-of-way to Berlin had been definitely spelled out in the Potsdam agreement. Vandenberg argued that it hadn't been put in "contractual form," and urged the Secretary of State to see that our right-of-way to Berlin is now made clear at Paris.

Jr. 'Going Places'

No one fought the election of Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., harder than Vito Marcantonio, sole American Labor representative in Congress. The legislator from Manhattan stumped the Twentieth District, trying to defeat the namesake of the late F. D. R.

But after it was all over and the votes showed young Roosevelt to be the overwhelming victor, Congressman Marcantonio met Congressman Chet Hoffield of California on the floor of the House. Quoth he:

"You want to get aboard with Franklin Roosevelt. He's really going places."

Note—Young Roosevelt's victory in New York will be a big psychological boost to his elder brother in California where Jimmie plans to run for governor.

CIO Housecleaning

CIO President Philip Murray's attack on Communists and fellow travelers last week was even tougher than appeared in the papers.

It was so devastating that the Communist party—liners were thrown into complete confusion and, at one point, Ben Gold, president of the left-wing Fur Workers Union, became so disgusted with his fellow leftists he went out for a round of drinks. Returning, Gold stood up and denounced Harry Bridges, shouting:

"I know the party line just as well as you do."

At another point Murray administered the crowning blow. With an eye at the New York trial of Communist leaders wherein the Justice Department has produced scores of Communists who were actually Government agents, Murray

Will YOU be BALD?

Is Your Hair GROWING or GOING?

Is your hair getting thinner and thinner on top and at the temples? Is dandruff choking growth in your hair follicles? Does your scalp itch and burn? These are danger signals and should warn you that baldness is overtaking you!

But today baldness is unnecessary. Modern science, in the form of the Thomas 26-year proved treatment, knows how to check thinning hair, rid your scalp of aggravating itch and dandruff. Knows, too, how to stimulate those dormant sources of hair growth—how to keep your hair growing.

A half-million other persons have benefited from the reliable Thomas treatment, given coast to coast in 45 professional offices. Consult a Thomas specialist today—let him show you how this time-tested method works. If he finds that you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment—he will tell you frankly. See for yourself how hair growth is stimulated, dandruff and itch overcome with Thomas treatment. No charge is made for a complete scalp examination—you are cordially invited.
